No underclassman knows the precious moment when the college annual is removed from its dusty shelf and opened to the wondering, anxious eyes of its owner. Today the INDEX means no more to you than your picture on page twenty-four; tomorrow it will be a storehouse of memories, an album of friends, and a tonic of youthfulness. It is for these tomorrows that the entire staff endeavors to compile graphically and through written word a record of the school year.

With the conviction that the essence of college life is found in its more informal, spontaneous aspects, an enlarged student life section is a welcomed innovation.

An empty gymnasium—empty bleachers, empty playing field, empty scoreboard. The circle expands. Vacant classrooms, offices, workshops, laboratories. Deserted football field, tennis courts, parking lots. Everywhere —no one. The days pass. The months pass. The seasons pass—spring, summer, fall, winter. Still, humanity is absent. But—here comes the student. No longer can it be said that the campus is deserted, for as long as there is one person to occupy space, vacancy can not occur. This student works industriously and soon he is joined by others. More students, more faculty, more humanity. The campus becomes a college, a university. The student makes his presence felt. He organizes a government, a system of rules to guide and discipline the behavior of his peers. Through this government he conceives the idea of clubs, associations, societies. Clubs are born through hard work and interest, and the student displays his concern for a purpose by joining a club. Soon there are honorary organizations to reward the industrious of the academic community. Other students find their reward in athletics. A winning basketball, football, or baseball team is important to the student body. Win, win, be first, get ahead, have friends, get good grades. The campus is full now. The student with his organizations, athletics, and schooling has completed the picture.

A book of fantasy, a high school textbook, a college letter sweater, and a graduation cap . . . symbolically these articles measure the step by step budding and flowering of a human life. Growth, however, is not a phenomenon reserved for human experienee. Activity on the campus of ISNU attests to this statement. Students are greeted by the hum of a crane, the pounding of a hammer, or the clang of supporting beams. Quickly adjusting to the inconveniences and noise of construction, students never know of the countless plans which long ago were dreamed in their behalf and today are taking form as concrete and steel realities. Yet thoughts of bigger buildings and better classrooms are not our only concern, for these are but a means to an end. Somehow a mere physical growth is not sufficient. It is not enough to increase the size of the faculty or to offer a greater number of sections in a particular course; a better trained graduate will emerge only when a greater variety and intensity of study becomes available. Similarly, the quality of instructor must parallel the depth of eurrieulum. So it has been at ISNU as we strive to offer an adequate edueation and background for tomorrow's teaeher.

But just what eonstitutes an adequate education? The edueator who believes his sole aim is to install names and numbers into the heads of his students has lost sight of the higher goals of edueation. The challenge of our age will not be aeeepted by the faetual mind of the realist; it will beeome the ease of the idealist—the response of a purposeful, dedieated spirit. A progressive eampus is the means by which the student ean best realize and actuate his ideal. Any progress in an institution to be meaningful must neeessarily be directed toward those who eomprise that institution. It is toward the realization of this higher goal that the expansion of ISNU has been purposefully and solely directed.

Each year new buildings will be constructed; more instructors will be hired and more courses offered; the latest facilities will be provided. But let's not forget that these are only a means toward achieving a more sensitive, inquisitive, educated YOU.

Emotion as expressed in the grace and precision of movement . . . an evening of art awaited the audience of the Orchesis concert.

With a timorous sigh the first fragile bud breaks from its winter refuge to announce the nativity of a babe called Spring. The infant has yet to have the christening dew drops dry upon his forehead before maudlin well-wishers stop to comment upon his long-awaited arrival. They seem to automatically slow their pace, gazing with joy at Mother Nature's newest creation. Oftentimes they pause below a pine, among the flowers, or in an open field to speak of near-forgotten memories. Soon the college campus is rediscovering the tickle of grass on bare feet and arms, the warmth of sunshine on an anxious sunbather, and the beauty of fragrant blossoms and balmy air. The focal point of every twenty-four hours is leisure time to be stolen from studying, working, and sleeping and spent with friends—free from the imprisonment of walls and windows.

The sixth month prisoner of scholarship has suddenly burst the restraining bonds, and academic pursuits are mere relics of past confinement. For that significant portion of the student body labeled seniors all sights and sounds have acquired special import. A formerly boring routine now excites an almost fanatical attempt to saturate all that is a part of the college scene. At last the delinquent student still stunned by the whirl from Blackfriar show to Lowell Mason operetta to Gamma Phi circus to Spring Cotillion is faced with the realization that he has not kept pace with the acceleration of miscellaneous assignments. Thus with finals near that fickle Spring deserts the campus to be replaced, but never to be forgotten by sentimental scholars.

To the shrine of their deity come the Sun worshippers. They bring with them fragrant lotions as offerings to their Summer idol.

We pause for a moment to chat about studies.

Summer

By the glare of burning sun the bricks and beams of a heating plant are laid in place.

Unheard is the doleful dirge, mourning the passage of Spring, for that fickle sprite is soon to return in but another form, a more mellow and seasoned Summer. A swipe across the perspiring brow or a fanning with the day's assignment is the usual notice taken by the college campus of maturity fulfilled, but the more observant summer student might note much more. The mischievous antics of the child have developed into the quiet reserve of adolescence. Countless days of pleasant sunshine follow one another until young Summer suffers one of the many crises accompanying his age, and all around him suffer from the heat of his anger and searchings. Informal habits of dress and a relaxing, impersonal classroom atmosphere are the trappings by which student and teacher attempt to beat the discomfort of that heat and humidity. Friendliness animates the shy "hello" or the learned chat developing from a moment's repose under a shady limb. Although a surprising vitality heightens the tempo of school life, weekends stand as monuments to carefree, careless hours with home the destination for their expenditure. Still, all ambitious scholars do not confine their academic pursuits within four walls, for knowledge is to be gained in a practical laboratory, the world, from courses undertaken on the European tour and Utah field study. So Summer is remembered, longed for, and relived as students turn saddened eyes upon its imminent death.

A popular gathering spot for sun-minded coeds is the sundeck, an outstanding feature of Atkin-Colby, new women's dormitory.

Fall

No one is quite certain when it happened, but by the time the college student returns from his three month reprieve that torrid adolescent Summer has become a man. Fittingly, he takes a new name—Fall. Although Fall receives no special puberty rites, he does assume the attitude befitting a thoughtful adult. The frequent heat of his formerly youthful anger has now subsided. Replacing these days of unpleasantly humid temperatures are days of complaisant temperance. Fall is a contented fellow, pleased with the unhurried routing of his life. He neither recalls his youth or dreams of his future, for time is suspended to insure longevity.

What would returning coeds do without male assistance?

A dazzling rainbow of varied hues is the colorful picture presented by a lovely Queen Lynne and court.

This reluctant blood donor keeps a watchful eye upon the procedure.

What do you mean, you're afraid of heights?

The college student is not unaffected by this agreeable companion. They speak of him with respect in tones found in the friendly range. Although they originally dreaded his appearance, his cheerful ways have completely captured their affections. They foresee his departure with foreboding. Fall's sunny disposition is indeed welcome to Summer's child, that sunbather who desired a tawny complexion. Tan seekers are still to be found soaking up the last sparks of young warmth remaining in the heart of Fall.

Yet somehow the grown-up Fall does not stimulate the abandon of that more frivolous child Spring. In many cases, campus enthusiasm is channeled toward a practical employment. Perhaps as wildlife prepares its storehouse for winter, so does the college student replenish his dwindling resources. Few business establishments are untouched by college employees. One finds our University represented at McDonald's Drive-In, Normal Theater, IGA, and the faculty lounge.

While Fall is usually garbed in a coat of humility, he indulges himself in an occasional boast about the campus festival which is celebrated during his sojourn. Fall is a bit amused and rather puzzled at the traditions observed at this time. First he views a small seale war between twenty-two warriors; then those same fighting men eseort their favorite lady to a vietory ball.

This season Fall, along with ISNU students, had a surprise awaiting as he returned to eampus. The praetieal arts building and gymnasium whieh had only been empty holes in the spring had magieally blossomed into towering struetures. Students talk of the day when they will file through the new halls. Inevitably age ereeps upon Fall. He valiantly battles for his life in lingering days of warmth. But one day he can no longer deny his fate, for to the whole world are visible his pure white strands. As befits a gentleman, Fall eoncedes to his elder.

The boar's head has caught everyone's attention, but madrigal singers and jester will return to merrymaking.

Winter

From playful babe to burning adolescent to thoughtful adult and then back to babe . . . Closing this cycle of birth and rebirth is a contradictory sort of a fellow called Winter. Although he is considerable in years, he is childish and inconsistent in nature; he is gruff and cold on the exterior, but within him glows a warm, indulgent spirit. One day he will blow and bluster at a powerless human race; next day he will seek reprieve and forgiveness by showering the world with frozen white tears of shame, covering the tarnished scenery with a veil of glitter.

He is never quite certain of the reception which he will receive from those who are included among the university population, for his blustery appearance has a foreboding aspect which alienates many students. After all, who can feel anything but contempt toward the one responsible for sub-zero temperatures, especially after a frigid hike to Centennial? And too, there are unbelievably long days when he forgets to awaken the sun, and the result of this absent-mindedness is cloudy, uninspiring hours of partial daylight and unbearably cold temperatures.

As students become accustomed to the ebb and flow of life and warmth from this time-worn Winter, they find his presence a great stimulus to profitable, directed study. Winter, that aged sage, calls to that spirit in man which seeks solitude before the blaze of a roaring fire. This setting plus an overstuffed ehair and a book will awaken in the student incomprehensible powers of concentration. At times this sensitive old man becomes indignant, for those whose allegiance he felt was secure, when as a child he wooed them from their books, have now become slaves to the written word and printed page. This unprecedented thirst for knowledge may, however, be quenched by almost any study situation. Milner Library, Centennial halls, or Schroeder classrooms supply the essential elements; nevertheless, the inquisitive mind provides the organic, motivating force.

After all, countless psychology texts exhort us that frequent breaks are great inducers to more profitable, concentrated study.

Although a decaying Winter takes lessening pride in his natural manifestations, he rejoices that the celebration of Christmas does not escape his dimming eyes. His vision, moreover, is dazzled by the twinkle of artificial lights on stately pines and firs, such as the one gracing the University lawn. He is drawn to that spot and enjoys along with the student body the initiation of Yuletide on the Union porch by traditional carols. Inside, echo the voices of madrigal singers, and reflections of their motley costumes are caught in festive eyes. The solemnity and impact of the awe-inspiring Messiah penetrates and overshadows all other observances of Christmas which are acknowledged on campus.

Inevitably Winter must expire, but his demise leaves no perceptible void. On his lifeless heels prances a welcomed herald of the new order, that indomitable Spring.

"We can think much clearer over a cup of coffee in the crowded Cage."

Student Life

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players. . . ." So William Shakespeare speaks of life, and the application is equally valid to an existence which is conveniently called student life. Presently the stage is empty, but do not be forlorn. Soon it will be vibrant and colorful with the antics of sundry actors. For just a moment shall we contemplate the profundity of solitude, pregnant with silence?

A blissful Queen Lynne aeeepts kiss and roses from Don Korte.

HOMECOMING COURT

Dusk fell on this Homecoming Friday and rain-drenched shadows swept across McCormick Field. No flames leaped from a traditional bonfire and the bleachers watched in vain beeause our adaptable scene shifters prepared the stage for the crowning of the queen in MeCormick Gym. It was here that Queen Lynne Hurless and her eourt were announeed before a cheering throng. The rustling winds whispered a poetic eadence through the trees although the coronation setting was prosaic.

In the true spirit of the carnival of Homecoming, the dance and the erowning of lovely Lynne Hurless and her court of Jan Ptasnik, Nancy DeCoursey, Sally Betts, and Gayle Malone became a game of magie mirrors. Through the one was seen a cascade of rain drops catching the light from the lamps of the quadrangle and the campus dorms. The eye was sobered by this recollection while through another the eye was dazzled by the reflection of the radiant queen and her court. Too soon the mirror was broken; the game was over, but the mind's eye was focused upon memories of those who led the 1962 Homeeoming crowds in a gala celebration.

A breath-taking picture of beauty is this portrait of the Queen and her eourt. These five lovely eoeds reigned with royal graee and eharm.

That Time of Year

The purist would say that Homecoming is an activity necessarily bounded by time and place in which people participate. It is, of course, much more than this. It is a frame of mind, a tingle to the senses, and above all an affair of the heart.

It is a time when Centennial, Schroeder, and Cook, to name a few, are not merely academic chambers but are vessels of memories for classes past. They stand as reminders of lost hopes and fears.

McCormick shelters enthusiasts with undaunted spirits.

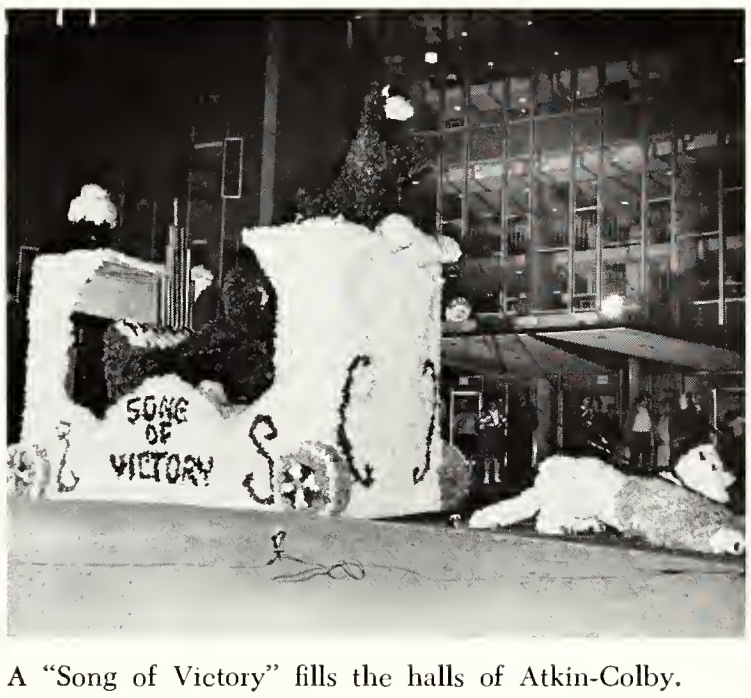

Threatening elouds of rain hung overhead, but they were momentarily delayed by the twinkle of an eye and the warmth of a smile.

Brave coeds defy the unfriendly elements to keep the annual Homecoming pep rally alive.

A sparkling performance brightens the Bonfire Bounce.

A "Song of Victory" fills the halls of Atkin-Colby.

Combining work and play looks like an ideal situation.

The arm load of textbooks is put aside, and the only burden is a chrysanthemum corsage for the girl and a feminine arm for the man. The senses perceive nothing but that which tastes and smells of excitement. What matter that this season brought the deluge and the Homecoming parade looked like an underwater ballet. The fact remains that the composition was excellent though the colors ran.

It is a time when the undergrads, the grads, and the faculty function as one unified force for the glory of ISNU—an impressive display.

The campus is a stage, and each plays his part as he moves through the teas, the rallies, the game, and the dances. Each has lines to speak—the past to draw upon, the future to dream of, and each moment of the present to be savored and stored. All are part of the color, the sound, and the music of the carnival that is Homecoming.

A curious flow and counter-flow take place as the undergrad becomes the grad and the grad becomes the undergrad. All is seen as with the eyes of babes —fresh and unblemished. And then Homecoming lives not only now but is the Homecoming of the past and the Homecoming of the future.

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday have come and gone; the flesh is exhausted but the heart is light, ever eager, ever yearning to revel again next year in that passion so lately spent.

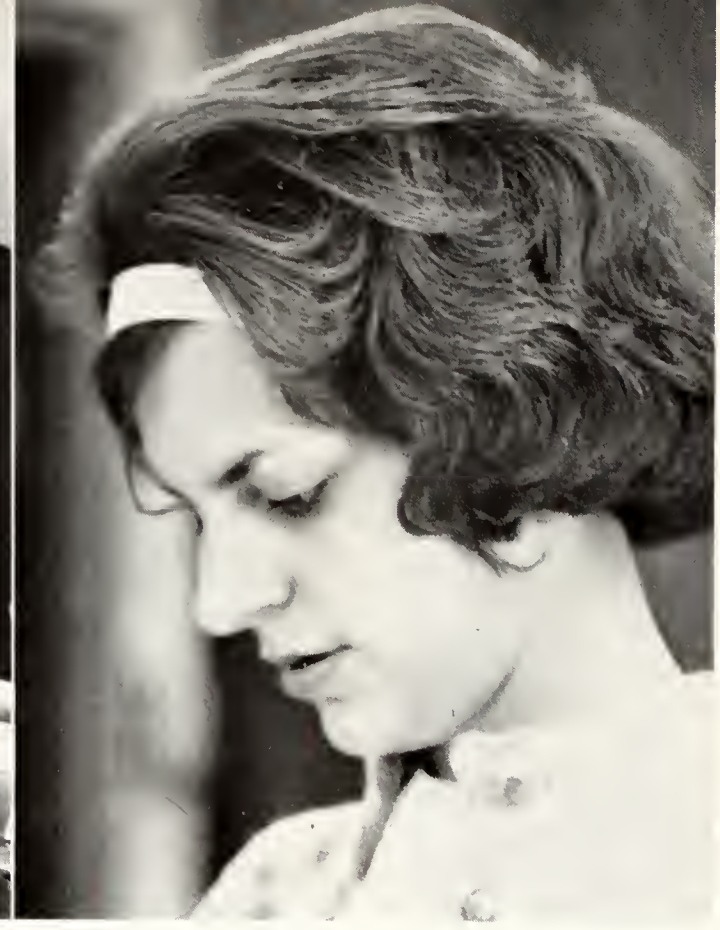

These daring lovelies add an aura of grace and charm to Homecoming parade.

For Tomorrows

An idea—then picture, copy, and layout—but first of all an idea! As the eager student anxiously thumbs through the many pages of yearbook pictures and copy, his thoughts may momentarily trace the time involved in placing the Index in his hands. It is doubtful, however, that he will realize the skill required to integrate a pile of pictures and a stack of copy into a feasible layout, the culmination of a finished page. While the Index is received by students as one whole, it is compiled by the staff page by page. It is worried over, talked about, and submitted to the engraver and printer page by page. A yearbook is, therefore, not the result of the genius of one idea, but it is rather the accumulation of a thousand ideas. The editor assigns a page; the photographer sets the scene, creating an atmosphere; the literary staff interprets that picture in signs and symbols; the layout staff combines these two into a meaningful whole—a page in the yearbook.

and it is as a unit that the members of the Vidette staff work. The staff is a large one, but as large as it is, each member of the team works to achieve the same goal—the bi-weekly production of a newsworthy, informative, and interesting student newspaper. In striving for an intellectual approach to campus coverage, the editors initiated thought-provoking columns. Cartoons depicted both campus and national politics; writers urged students and faculty to express their opinions; sports activities received objective previews and resumes; often fiery discussions started and ended through editorials, letters to the editor, and opinion columns.

Unsolved problems of the paper are brought to Mr. Tudor.

With anticipation the staff awaited every Tuesday and Thursday. The headline count must be perfect. The page layout must be correct. The pictures must be "on-the-spot." But most important, the readers, critical though they may be, should approve of their paper and the coverage it gives them. The greatest reward comes whenever a staff member hears, "Did you read in the Vidette that . . . ?"

WGLT

For Our Listening

Symbolically, spring is referred to as the time of birth. So it was that in the spring of 1962, ISNU gave birth to the first radio station in school history. After running a contest for the station's call letters, WGLT was chosen. This was a very good choice for a teachers' college, since the letters stand for "We gladly learn and teach." Fifty-eight hours of standard broadcasting are piped each week into eight dorms on campus, Rambo House, McCormick Gymnasium, and the University greenhouse.

Jon Olson was heard daily by his student audience.

Jon Olson was station manager for the 1962 spring and fall semesters. Ed Ceres was selected as manager for the spring semester this year. His executive officers were Cliff Curley, program director, and Jack Henderson, chief engineer. The station's main purpose is to program educational shows, but there are also many fine hours of classical, jazz, and mood music. Home football and basketball games, lectures, and concerts have been broadcasted as a part of WGLT's ever increasing service to students. With morning shows now a reality, WGLT continues to increase its excellent programming.

Freshmen were introduced to the broadcasts of station WGLT at the fall organizational round-up.

BLACKFRIARS

Fellows for Fun

In 1932, an organization was established on this campus to bring entertainment to the student body. Today this brotherhood presents the annual Blackfriars Spring Show, which combines many types of talent. Tradition has deemed this all-student production a musical comedy, so the members create the complete script and music for the enjoyment of the public. Blackfriars also take part in many other activities. One can't help but laugh at the antics of the group as they march along in the Homecoming parade. At the AWS Carnival, the clowning German marching band was a hit in the show. Pledging, serenades, the spring dinner-dance, and the Playboy Party at the Holiday Inn rounded out a successful year of service and entertainment.

Rhythm in Fours

Amid the sounds of bubbling laughter, swishing skirts, and tapping feet, four big name bands presented magical moments of music in the dimly lighted atmosphere of McCormick Gymnasium. The settings for these musical interludes were as varied as the music itself. Couples were comforted by the cool, crisp autumn breeze that accompanied their movements; however, a misty spring evening served as a perfect background for the happy twosomes that saw the Big Four season close. Variety in rhythm was achieved by the individuality of each of the four bands. Tex Beneke brought forth the tempo of sophisticated swing while Les Brown changed the mood with his interpretation of the familiar rhythms. A special concert featuring the nationally famous Four Preps delighted an audience which gladly acted the part of listener and was rewarded with sonorous folk ballads and novelty selections sprinkled generously with humor. All too quickly the year drew to a close, but the scintillating melodies heard at the Big Four dances were still being lightly hummed by many an appreciative student.

Blowing bubbles really wasn't included in the entertaining repertoire of the Limeliters.

ENTERTAINMENT BOARD

Talent to Share

From the lively comedy of the Limeliters to the classical presentations of the Roger Wagner Chorale, the Entertainment Board offered diversified and great talent to students, faculty, and members of the community. The magic pianos of Ferrante and Teicher and unusual arrangements by Peter Nero captivated an eager audience. The Arts Theatre, also a product of the board, featured such movies as Gaslight and Knock on Wood. The entire series stimulated old interests and exciting new thoughts.

Immersion in a fairy tale existenee was the response of approximately 600 students to the whirlwind atmosphere of the University Club's Spring Stunt Show. Closing hours every evening found blurry-eyed performers memorizing lines, revising routines, and praeticing lyrics. Months of devoted labor, representing creativity, cooperation, and eompetition took final form in skits ranging from a parody upon superfluous scholarship to an imitation of classical Greek comedy. Anxiety and tension predominated as the competitive spirit of dorm dwellers swelled to overflowing at dress rehearsal. When the freshmen women's act emerged victorious, a glow of pride in this joint effort of on-campus students overshadowed the disappointments of defeat.

LOWELL MASON -- MENC

Music at Heart

Presenting the story of the "irresistible force" and the "immovable object" was the Lowell Mason Club in its production of "Guys and Dolls." This activity provided members with the opportunity of planning and participating in a musical, for it is entirely a student sponsored presentation. Members also participated in the annual state convention of the Illinois Music Educators Association held in Peoria, Illinois. This year's club is especially honored by the fact that from its membership came the president of this state organization—John Johnston. The Lowell Masons can boast this year of the largest membership in its history. Limited to students majoring or minoring in music, the club featured programs with the George Southgate Quintet, Mr. Robert Allen of Chillicothe High School, and Benny Kemp, who presented his doctoral recital.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Art in Theatre

With much backstage emotion, with much audience appeal, the participants in the University Theatre productions went before the most modern lighting equipment to present eleven plays of varied tempo and plot. Under the direction of the five theatre staff members Miss Mable Clare Allen, Mr. Eric Bickley, Miss Yvonne Bronowicz, Mr. Harry Stiver, and Mr. Robert Whitlatch, the theatre crew presented productions of "Madwoman of Chaillot," "Rhinoceros," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "The Alchemist," and six experimental plays.

Uniting talents, sharing ideas, pledging unity . . . with these aspirations in mind, approximately sixty Illinois State Normal students interested in drama joined enthusiasm with creative planning and hard work. The outcome of this combination was the first student-directed drama ever presented on campus. The play—Frederico Lorca's "Blood Wedding." The result—success. Success gave the initiative to plan for another student production next year and the hope to establish a new tradition. But innovation will only supplement custom, so the members continue to pledge themselves to the Jesters—the call for talent, leadership, companionship, and fun.

MUSIC

The Question—Just What Is Music?

What is music? Answer that and you may have the answer to life itself. Pulses measuring off the inches of time, arpeggios climbing and descending invisible staircases, mazes of tonal pitch relations, approaching, passing, changing, blending in the mind—these are merely fragments of music. Philosophers have offered hundreds of explanations, probing no deeper than the surface of this great mystery. Like gravity, we know not what music is, only what it does. It transports our spirits along quiet streams, or pulls us over climatic waves with equal ease, splashing harmonic novelties upon us from all directions. Music obeys no rules imposed by man; yet, it obeys all rules followed by man—nature's rules governing the eternal harmony of the universe. Here is the link between music and all other media of education. The musician follows a path parallel to that of the scientist, historian or philosopher; each is on his individual quest for truth's focal point.

Here in school every musician sees a set of paths lying before him—diverging at first, then converging at the opposite end. From these he must choose the path most suited to his talents, over which he will pursue his own quest for truth.

Obviously, one musician is incapable of reproducing an entire composition; he must join with fellow musicians to form a choir, band, orchestra, or small ensemble. This group effort yields a double reward: knowledge about music and the joy of sharing it with others. Each organization specializes in one type of music, but all set for themselves the same high goals—perfection and excellence.

Across campus the University Choir is remembered for its moving, inspiring performances. It is this group that forms the core of participants in the Christmas oratorio the "Messiah." Other December activities included performances at the Christmas Vespers Service. The year began with an appearance at Freshmen Convocation and concluded with selections presented at ISNU Commencement.

The student body was especially appreciative to the Treble Choir for its outstanding presentation during Mother's Day ceremonies. In addition to its spring and fall concerts, the choir supplied an octet which performed for the Administrators Round-up and the dedicatory services of Atkin-Colby.

Emphasis within the Men's Glee Club this year has been toward limiting membership to a select group; therefore, auditions were introduced, and membership was lowered to forty. Among campus performances was an appearance at the Founder's Day Banquet; however, off-campus performances were numerous. As a first, this group traveled to Vandalia, where they presented a program at the state penal institution. From the Glee Club came an octet which performed at the Sweetheart Ball and the International Rotary Club Convention.

When the Women's Chorus makes its spring tour, the program which it presents to high school audiences is of a light, gay style. This same style displayed at Pekin, Bradford, and Aledo is preserved when the Chorus sings on campus, for its two concerts charmed a student audience with show tunes.

Instrumental groups are also an active force in campus musical activity. The Concert and Varsity Bands are characterized by the wide variety of works which they perform. Their selections cover all periods of musical history and style—classic, romantic, and contemporary. Both groups display their versatility at concerts throughout the school year.

Pictured is the Marching Band, which performs at various fall activities. Its members are identified in other organizational shots.

They say that practice makes perfeet, and perfeetion is our goal.

Supplementing band participation are the Marching and Stage Bands. The former performed for all home football gamcs and also at Eastern Illinois University. The Homeeoming Parade highlighted the performances of the Marehing Band. The later band was seen at the APO Revue and the Gamma Phi Circus. Thc Stage Band, howcvcr, closed the year with its own modern music concert in May.

Concentrating on the literature of the masters was the University Orchestra. Their thrce coneerts featured outstanding soloists Mr. Luca DiCccco and Dcan Boal of Bradlcy University. Thc ycar endcd by prescnting "Thc Rcquiem" with thc Univcrsity Choir. This group provided the musical background for this year's Lowell Mason production.

In all these organizations, vocal and instrumental, complex interplay of notes, sonoritics, and rhythms parallels the interplay of individual personalities. Thc outcomc of this unusual blend of abstraetions is musie, the key to man's soul.

CORYPHEES

Seen at many football and basketball games, the Coryphees, a precision dance team, lift school spirit and promote the general enthusiasm of the crowd. Tryouts in the early fall are just the beginning for hopeful candidates. Membership means lots of hard work, for the group practices from two to three weeks before presenting a show. The Coryphees were also seen in the APO Revue.

VARUNAS

"Adam to Atom" was the theme of the Sixth Annual Swim Show presented by Varunas. This organization strives to provide entertainment for the audience as well as to instill a creative ability in the members participating in the show. The idea of creativity was carried out by introducing effects in presentation and lighting to startle the audience. A successful show was the product of their work.

Sweetheart roses for Queen Lynn were presented by Phil Wilson.

SWEETHEART BALL

Hearts and Flowers

White flocked trees decorated with golden hearts and artificial red roses, a white fountain supported by a cupid with golden hair, red taffeta draped in folds over a throne—this was the dazzling picture which awaited students who attended the University Union Board's annual Sweetheart Ball. Sweethearts danced in a dreamland, created by the enchanting music of Lyle Smith and his orchestra. The climax of the evening came when Lynn Wuethrich was crowned queen of the 1963 Sweetheart Ball. After the coronation dance led by the Queen and her court, couples, surrounded by the romantic setting, again floated to the music. As the evening ended, all wondered what next year's Valentine season would bring to students and their sweethearts.

Reigning "sweetheart" was a radiant Lynn Wuethrich.

"Who is this mummy?" Some Egyptian . . .?

This year's carnival offered students much fun and laughter.

Carnival or Circus

Gaily colored balloons, rollicking clowns, and festive booths created an exciting atmosphere for those attending the AWS Carnival. McCormick Gymnasium echoed with the laughter of those participating in the various contests set up by campus organizations. Testing the sense of smell, throwing garters on pretty coeds' legs, catching goldfish, and getting married Oriental fashion were among the booths that captured the fancy of all. Climaxing the night was the auction of professors.

GAMMA PHI

Circus for College

Oblivious of the live circus, this little clown dreams of a sugarplum world.

Circus is almost synonymous with clowns, and clowns mean fun and frolic.

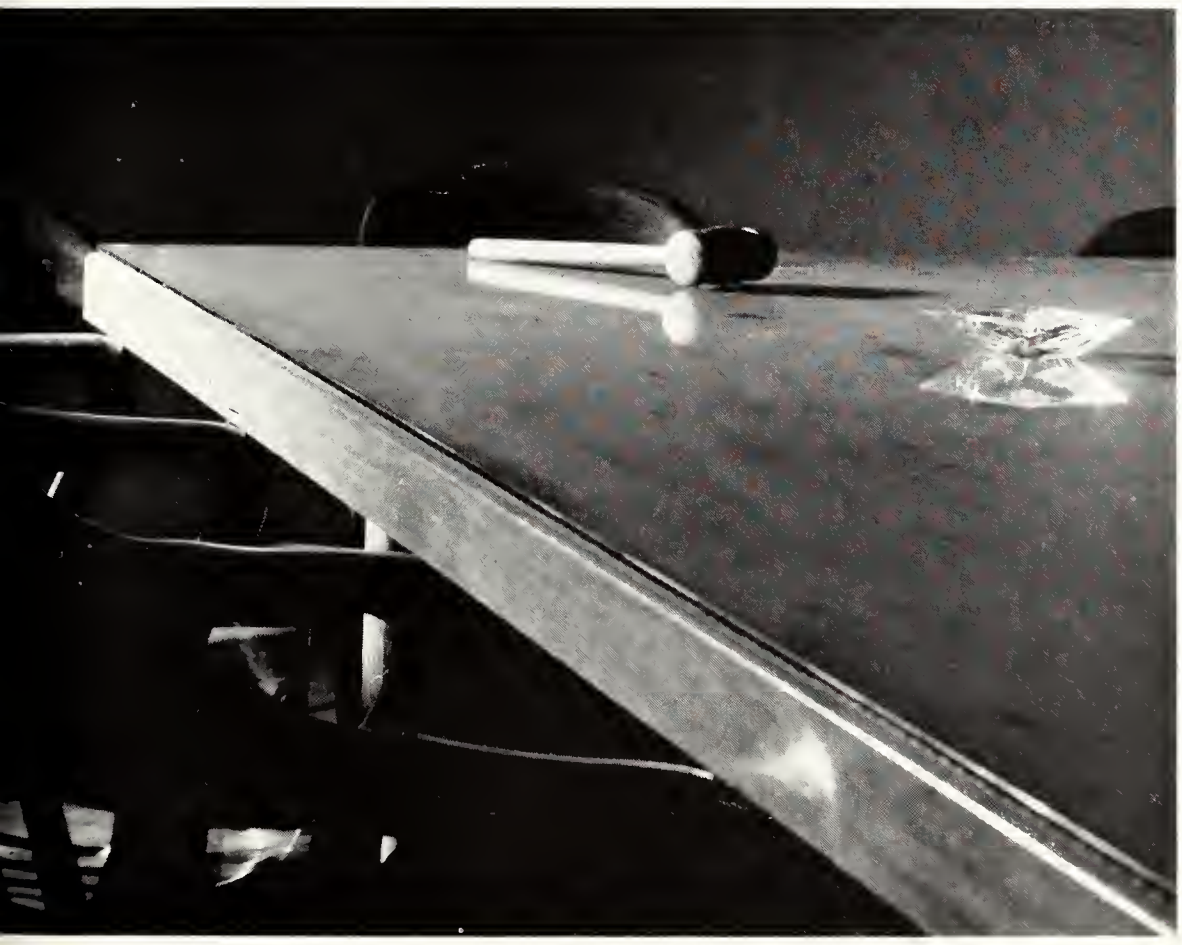

Sensation, suspense, skill—characteristics of the big ring circus, characteristics of Gamma Phi. Rollicking clowns, expert jugglers, skillful tumblers, and spinning rope artists combined to create a meaningful hush in McCormick Gym. The many months of planning, practicing, and perfecting seemed worthwhile when the performers of the annual circus realized that the applause of the audience indicated that they had been successful. They had captured complete attention; they had both charmed and terrorized their audience; they had performed difficult skills with ease and enthusiasm.

Round and round we go, but when we stop, no one knows or cares, for Gamma Phi audiences hope that this human merry-go-round will twirl on forever amid the excitement of a big top.

Organizations

A gavel, a book of parliamentary procedure, and committee meetings—these are the machinery that ensure a smoothly functioning organization; however, these mechanical devices are not the vital nucleus of a thriving body. The discarded ash trays and the confusion of chairs reveal the human element. The vitality of any organization is dependent upon the thoughtful minds, helpful hands, and the faithful hearts of its members.

Bill Sharp consults with Larry Galloway as they attaek the paper work involved in student government.

STUDENT SENATE

Government of All

With attentiveness the student body followed the formal and informal sessions of an extremely vocal Student Senate. The year began as the Senate cooperated with various groups in the selection of cheerleaders; plans were also continued on the ISU campaign. Of primary importanee, however, were discussions concerning racial discrimination, espeeially in off-campus housing. As a result of the Senate's efforts, there will be no segregated off-campus houses after the fall of 1965. Also included on the agenda were the adoption of five Latin American ehildren through the foster parents plan, a fall leadership eonference for all campus organizations, serviee to the McLean County Mareh of Dimes drive, and plans for the laying of new sidewalks to replace footpaths. By conducting all class elections, a stable and smoothly functioning student government was insured for the entire year.

UNIVERSITY UNION BOARD

Activity Prevails

To present a complete list of the activities of the University Union Board would indeed be a laborious task, for it is one of the most active, productive organizations on campus. The Board, for example, is involved in organizing and preparing for the Christmas and Sweetheart Balls. Sponsorship of the annual ski trip during semester break is an enormous responsibility, but the glowing remembrances relayed by returning participants tends to minimize the task. Involving a greater portion of the student body are the programs "The Red Door Presents," a series of varied entertainment from comedy to jazz. The Christmas Tree Lighting which initiates the holiday season on campus is but another function of this group. This year the Union Board introduced a fine arts series featuring lectures by professors in music, speech, and art. This project was well accepted and reflected most favorably upon the Board.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

"To the children, past, present, and future"—so read the dedicatory remarks which prefaced the program of the APO Revue. Organizing outstanding college talent into this charity performance was an activity in accord with the worthy ideals of the fraternity.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Gaining invaluable information about the world of commerce were the Business Education Club members who listened to speakers on the topic of stocks and bonds. A noteworthy project of service was the judging of off-campus homecoming decorations.

CLOVERLEAF COLLEGIATE

At Christmas time the Cloverleaf Collegiate organization brought joy to needy children through their project of outfitting discarded dolls. Several meetings pursued the timely topic of automobile safety through outside speakers, group discussions, and movies.

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

Much of the program of the Association of Childhood Education was devoted to charity work with underprivileged children at Victory Hall. An interesting and informative meeting awaited members when Mr. Placker of the Peoria School System staged a mock interview.

Seated: Denise Kohl, recording secretary; Barbara Budde, vice-president; Barbara LaBedz, president; Joanne Kovacs, corresponding secretary. Standing: Dr. William Frinsko, adviser; Bil Blick, treasurer; Miss Luella Schultze, adviser.

Seated: Sondra Preston, president; Beverly Spohr, vice-president. Standing: Jeanne Akerman, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Kenneth Ledbetter, adviser.

ENGLISH CLUB

Offering students the opportunity of attending performances of Richard II and the Thurber Carnival was included in the program of the English Club. These trips were supplemented by such speakers as Marion Sheridan of the National Council of English Teachers.

FORENSICS UNION

A winning debate team was the result of emphasizing the skill of argumentation in Forensic Union activities. Purdue, Wake Forest, and Northwestern were sites of competition on, "Resolved: The Non-Communist Nations Should Establish an Economic Community."

Seated: Dennis Gouran, president. Standing: Mr. Stanley Rives, adviser; Dave Arnold, vice-president.

GEOGRAPHY CLUB

Newly formed this year, the Organization for the Development of Interest in Geographical Activities plans to gain an insight into the various realms of geography. Guest speaker Mr. E. J. King of the Nystrom Company spoke about the usage of maps in the classroom.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

In fulfillment of the theme "New Lights in Home Economics," monthly meetings of the Home Economics Club emphasized various rays of a familiar spectrum—good grooming. "Glittering Lights," a program concerning jewelry, was but one light revealed to club members.

Seated: Bruce Holderbaum, president; Ted McAvoy, vice-president. Standing: Mr. Claude Bell, adviser; Charles Reek, treasurer; Gordon Eipens, secretary; Gerald Theis.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The entire student body is indebted to the Industrial Arts Club for the publication of the ever popular Student Directory, for members of this organization print and distribute the book annually. Members enjoy all club picnics which are held in the fall and spring.

JUNIOR HIGH CLUB

A new member among campus organizations, the Junior High Club works to stress the importance of competent teaching at the junior high level and to promote the recognition of this curriculum as a separate area of teaching. The club is drafting a constitution.

Seated: Carol Kepner, Clifford Saupe, president; Joy O'Laughlin, John Fussner, Carleen Forth. Standing: Glenn Hagemann, Sally Krizan, Mary Ann Kleczewski, Jane Spanheimer, Keith Kaye.

Seated: Kathleen Klein, secretary-treasurer; Ronald Garfield, president. Standing: Miss Allie Ward Billingsley, adviser; Lucy Tomb, Al Mirande, vice-president.

LA ESTUDIANTINA

To the clapping of hands, the stamping of feet, and the rattling of candy, the members of La Estudiantina laughed and danced their way through a traditionally bright Mexican Piñata party. Creating a Spanish atmosphere by imitating customs animated a way of life.

LATIN CLUB

Cooperating with the Foreign Language Club, the Latin Club encouraged its members to increase their knowledge of languages. Of special interest to students of the classical Latin language were slides depicting life in Rome. A faculty panel discussion was also sponsored.

Seated: Betty Gerken, vice-president; Carol White, secretary-treasurer. Standing: Dr. Henry Manahan, adviser; Chuck Buckman, president.

Seated: Nancy Johnston, vice-president; Sandy Nettz, president. Standing: Dr. Brigitta Kuhn, adviser; Lucille Smith, secretary; Ronald Garfield, treasurer.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Only through disciplined study can enjoyment of the arts and cultures of a foreign country be achieved. Seeking such enjoyment, Le Cercle Francais dined in the French manner and discovered the rhythms, meters, and sentiments expressed by French musicians and artists.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

Beginning the year with a prize-winning float, the Mathematics Club continued a successful year of interesting programs. Guest speakers stimulated the students' curiosity about the topics "Relativity and Space Travel" and "The Relevance of Mathematics to Psychology."

Seated: David Smith, president; Phyllis Mathre, vice-president. Standing: Jo Eastabrooks, secretary; Mr. James Rowe, adviser; Andrew Samide, treasurer; Judith Boston.

MEN'S PE CLUB

Members of the Men's PE Club are introduced to a wide variety of athletic experiences through the activities of this club. One program, for example, featured a demonstration by our gymnastic team. This organization assisted with the annual cheerleading clinic.

N CLUB

Membership in N Club is reserved for letter winners, but it is a club of service, not of idle recognition. N Club was busy supervising such activities as the Homecoming queen election and concession stands at home games. It also publicized athletic events, therefore informing students of future sports highlights. Among the annual projects of the Club are sponsorship of the goodwill dance after the Wesleyan football game and hosting of the county high school basketball tournament. A dinner-dance provided an appropriate finale.

NAACP

With enthusiasm and zeal our ehapter of the NAACP launehed a year of purposeful activities. The group made finaneial donations to adult edueation elasses of several ehurches in the Bloomington area and to the Freedom Fund in Springfield. Efforts were made to eoordinate loeal groups displaying a sineere interest in raee relation problems; a reeeption held in honor of foreign students represented such a program. Speakers, including Dr. John Behling and Dr. John Martens, led the group in searehing diseussions of timely topies.

NATURALIST CLUB

Proud of its heritage as one of the oldest elubs on campus, the Naturalist Club assumed responsibility for exhibits in several of the museum cases lining Fehnley Hall. Dr. Merle Wurth of St. Joseph Hospital introduced members to varied laboratory techniques.

ORCHESIS

Vividness of expression results from integrating images of the mind with movements of the body. Variations of basic techniques are used by Orchesis members to interpret abstract emotions and ideas. Culmination of these efforts is presented at a spring concert.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE CLUB

Busily sponsoring enterprises which will interest physical science majors and minors, the Physical Science Club brings well-known speakers to campus and sells handbooks of chemistry and physics. Among the speakers was J. E. Hubbard of the Agricultural Survey.

Seated: Terry Jacobs, president; Richard Rybacki, vice-president. Standing: Dr. T. C. Ichniowski, adviser; Lloyd Wacker, secretary; Riehard Davis, treasurer.

Seated: Kathie Krejsa, president; Ron McClain, vice-president. Standing: Evelyn Coffus, treasurer; Dr. Norman Luxenburg, adviser; Lyrrel Brown, secretary.

RUSSIAN CLUB

Members of the Russian Club traveled to Chieago, where they attended a performance of the Don Cossak dancers. At the meetings various speakers gave enlightening insights into the many aspects of Soviet life. Meetings closed with the singing of Russian folk tunes.

SCIENCE CLUB

A new era of progress and scientifie experimentation has opened for individuals who ponder the wonders of our universe. Stimulating just such an interest, the Seience Club attended a demonstration on electrostaties supervised by Dr. Born and Mr. Cramer.

Seated: Brian Schaar, president; Cheryl Sass, secretary-treasurer. Standing: Dr. Harold Born, adviser; Mary Robey, vice-president; Dr. Stanley Shuman, adviser.

Seated: Beverly Stahlak, vice-president; James Fetzer, president. Standing: Patricia Halcott, secretary; Paul Vogt, Dr. Douglas Poe, adviser; James Sopira, treasurer.

SOCIAL SCIENCE CLUB

Constantly endeavoring to learn more about world problems, the Social Science Club listened to many educated speakers; among them was the international representative of the United Auto Workers. Within the more informal realm, members enjoyed a spring picnic.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Characterized by unselfish service, Special Education members gave freely of their time to bring swimming and recreational activities to handicapped children during Y-Nights. They also served as the host school for the Council for Exceptional Children held in Chicago.

SIEA

Carrying out the theme "New Horizons in Education," speakers at the monthly meetings of Student Illinois Education Association presented new innovations in teaching. Their convention in Chicago and a Christmas toy drive were some of the activities.

WOMEN'S PE CLUB

To further their professional education, the Women's PE Club held a gymnastic clinic and a mock convention at which displays of the latest equipment and athletic apparel were shown. A competitive spirit was kindled when the four classes vied in the stunt show.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

An October trip to Springfield to hear President Kennedy speak was indeed a memorable occasion for members of the Young Democrats Club. Forming a spirited "Students for Yates" committee, the group was honored by a visit from the candidate himself.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

After canvassing the precincts of Normal and sponsoring party candidates, the Young Republicans climaxed election time with an election eve party in true campaign atmosphere. Later activities culminated with the annual state convention held this spring in Chicago.

Seated: Jim Koch, vice-president; Ralph Moore, president. Standing: Dr. Alice Ebel, adviser; Jim King, treasurer; Karen Neuendorf, secretary.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

Inaugurating school spirit among the student body, the University Club began the school year by sponsoring several mixers. Continuing into the year, the Redbird Rally introduced the members of the fall sport teams. The beautiful and inspiring Christmas service ushered in the Christmas season for students, faculty, and members of the community. The Stunt Show highlighted the year. Thus the University Club promoted the social welfare of the male student and increased the cooperation among all school organizations.

President Phil Wilson offers a suggestion to thoughtful members as they plan one of the numerous activities of the University Club.

ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN STUDENTS

Toward the attainment of personal maturity, the Association of Women Students sponsored United Nations Day and civic projects with the League of Women Voters. Once again the Campus Sister program assisted coeds with the perplexities of college life. In conjunction with the University Club, they held Big Four dances and Dad's Day ceremonies.

What could it be that has so captured these picnickers' interest?

WOMEN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

Coordinating all extra-curricular women's sport activities and participating in many social events, the Women's Recreation Association played an important role in the life of the university. A Fun Night with AWS for big and little sisters as well as the Co-Rec play nights helped bring other groups into recreational activities. In addition to the sports days in basketball, volleyball, tennis, and other sports, intramural and extramural tournaments were held. Coke hours provided an opportune time for members to get together.

RELIGION

The Human Spirit

Man feels an inherent need to worship some god or cause. He feels a kinship to something beyond his intellect and yet approachable by his spirit. And so man humbles himself before his Creator in order that he might relate himself to the divine. Man kneels in prayer, and in the solitude of his own deepest thoughts he realizes communication with God. In this same attitude man can commune with his best self, the spark of immortality which inhabits all humanity. Some can find this spiritual quietude in a crowded room or in their own dwellings. For most of us, however, a more inspirational background is required to achieve the necessary detachment from the worldly to experience the heavenly. To churches, synagogues, cathedrals, and temples within the reach of our campus go the students of our University. Each Sunday they fill the pews of the churches of various denominations, but they share a common bond. There they rediscover the fulfillment of a worshipful, reverent spirit.

APOSTOLIC CHRISTIAN BIBLE CLASS

An integral part of the program of the Apostolic Christian Bible Class was song, an expression which was emphasized by the work of special quartets and choirs. Although portions of meetings were devoted to singing, discussion and worship were not omitted.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

Assistance toward the support of two student missionaries serving in foreign lands is the focal point of Baptist Student Union activities. The group concentrated its campus program upon weekly vespers which encouraged the members to understand their faith.

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL

B'nai B'rith functions to further the Jewishness of its members in their cultural, social, and religious attitudes. Friday evening religious services were held in observance of the Sabbath while interfaith socials added to the cultural and social development.

CANTERBURY CLUB

The observance of Lent was initiated for Canterbury Club members by a Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper. Sunday evening dinners were followed by informal discussions on religious art, sacred music, and the relationships between education and the Christian.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

When lecturers Mr. Ricke and Mr. Seeley from the Mother Chureh in Boston visited our campus, they spoke to Christian Science members about applying religious concepts to daily living. "Successful Living Found Through Christian Science" was also discussed.

Seated: Walt Rockabrand, president; Ben Long, vice-president. Standing: Leska Zinser, treasurer; Virgine Powell, secretary; Dr. Louis Martens, adviser.

EUB FELLOWSHIP

For members of the Evangelical United Brethren Fellowship the trip to a mission station in Redbird, Kentucky, highlighted the year. Christmas caroling brought Yuletide joy into the homes of elderly church members. The Club encouraged participation in UCCF.

IVCF

Encouraging its members to view Christianity with a world-wide perspective, the Intervarsity Christian Fellowship sponsored a spring missionary conference. This concept was further pursued when Dr. Miller of Wesleyan discussed "The Brotherhood of Christianity."

LUTHERAN CLUB

A Christmas toy drive and Lenten serviees highlighted the activities whieh the Lutheran Club offered its members. At weekly meetings students studied diverse religions by means of discussions on interfaith marriage and tours through churches of other denominations.

NEWMAN CLUB

The scope of the Newman Club program included religious, educational, and soeial activities. The year began with a reception-dance and fall picnic to introduec new members to the fun of Newman Club fellowship. The Center, open for the use of Catholie students throughout the week, served as the site of meetings and informal gatherings. A corporate communion mass provided students with the opportunity to celebrate the Divine Liturgy as a group. Enlightening members upon topies of Catholicism was a series of classes.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Inspirational study sessions on Sunday mornings were devoted to the subjects "The Faith of a Christian" and "Contemporary Christian Thinkers." Worship services found members lending their voices to the Wesley Choir. Evening suppers, worship, and programs revolved around the theme "Christianity, Education, the Fine Arts, and the Behavioral Sciences." Programs including dramatic readings and choral selections were also enjoyed by Methodist students. Group participation was emphasized and achieved by a panel discussion which explored various aspects of current issues especially significant to the ISNU campus and its students.

YWCA

In commemoration of our nation's first collegiate YWCA, which was founded on this campus ninety years ago, the current YWCA presented several programs for the public. Of special interest was "An Evening of Broadway Favorites" with Annamary Dickey.

Honoraries

It has evolved as a tradition of our society to honor and recognize achievement and yet not lose sight of the ideal toward which that achievement was channeled. Membership in any honorary is not only a reward but also a responsibility to realize one's innate capabilities and to glean their full potential. When an individual succeeds in this pursuit, he brings honor to himself no matter what his level of achievement.

ALPHA BETA ALPHA

The world of books is mapped and eategorized by librarians who are represented on campus by Alpha Beta Alpha, the national library science fraternity. It sponsors a Founder's Day banquet and informative programs which pertain to librarianship.

ALPHA TAU ALPHA

Sponsoring the Homeeoming parade, a chieken barbecue for alumni, and a eontest in judging for high schools, Alpha Tau Alpha, the honorary agricultural fraternity, was an integral part of campus life. The Hobert Medal Award Banquet climaxed the year.

GAMMA THETA UPSILON

Meetings of the geography honorary centered chiefly around discussions led by guest speakers, including faculty members Patterson, Searight, and Trotter. Fall and spring initiation of pledges and the annual banquet were the other social activities of this fraternity.

IOTA LAMBDA SIGMA

Iota Lambda Sigma, in close cooperation with the Industrial Arts Club, sponsored a regional exhibition of high school projects depicting industrial vocations. An impressive December banquet at the University Union served as the fraternity's formal initiation of pledges.

PI OMEGA PI

Initiating the activities of Pi Omega Pi, honorary fraternity of the Business Department, was an alumni tea during homecoming weekend. Monthly programs included a presentation by Dr. Thomas Martin concerning advanced study in business education.

SIGMA TAU DELTA

Prominent among the activities of Sigma Tau Delta is the publication of the Triangle, an annual compilation of selected poems and prose written by university students. Climax of the year comes at the formal spring banquet when new members are officially initiated.

THETA ALPHA PHI

Working closely with the Jesters, Theta Alpha Phi, the dramatics honorary, sponsored Drama Day on campus to vitalize student interest in this field. This year they worked industriously on the play "Blood Wedding" which was produced and directed entirely by students—a campus first.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTS

With Leadership

Admitted in full standing to the Graduate School at Illinois State Normal University, personally qualified to live with students as a group adviser and counselor, possessing a background of experience which will aid in assisting undergraduates, holding a bachelor's degree from an accredited college—these are the qualifications a student must meet in order to be a graduate counselor in our residence halls. If the graduate student has these qualifications, plus the requisite personal characteristics, and is chosen for a position, his work has just begun. As a counselor his duties include serving as an adviser to residents, working with the hall's governmental system, helping with the planning and execution of the entire program within the dormitory, and performing certain administrative duties essential to the operation of the hall. Certainly for a student who wishes to do part-time work and gain experience in human relations while working toward a master's degree, the program is of immeasurable value.

Many words have both an objective and subjective meaning. Such is the case of the words honor resident. Superficially an HR is one possessing extraordinary qualities of leadership, personality, and scholarship. But the HR must meet stiffer requirements. She must be available for conferences continuing into the wee hours of the night; she must present the ideas and problems of her girls to the directors of the dormitory for discussion and action; she must enforce dorm regulations. Working as a unit, the HR's of Hamilton-Whitten and Atkin-Colby planned an HR retreat in May to acquaint future HR's with their responsibilities and duties. The HR continues her work by manning the reception desk, distributing the mail, planning parties, and being an asset to her dorm and school.

An honor resident's dream—contented, cheerful girls . . . This situation, however, is only realized by mutual cooperation.

Athletics

Discarded, entangled, and rendered useless —in disarray lie the potential implements of an individual and team effort. Repossessed and disentangled, they become vital, integral parts of a whole. As helmets and padding do not constitute an athlete, neither does the individual player comprise a team. Unity and purpose come only when each member is imbued with a single, immovable objective, unencumbered by personal considerations.

Cheerleaders to Charm and Cheer

Combine the sensation of crisp air with the exuberance of swirling skirts and megaphones plus the determination of eleven gridmen, and the elements of football are present. As football fades and basketball predominates, the athletic scene changes except for the swirl of skirts. The ten most vital pep machines on campus, our cheerleading squad, are the official promoters of school spirit by uniting skill, personality, and vitality in their leadership of the students' cheers and chants.

FOOTBALL

It was a typical football season. It was a year filled with high hopes, crushing disappointments, wild surprises, and unbelievable turns of fate. It was the year that marked the final encounter on the hallowed and time-worn turf of McCormick Field.

With the loss of many stalwart seniors, there followed the diseovery of very capable understudies to replenish the Redbird squad for the 1963 season in the new Bird nest on West campus.

The Redbird gridders began the year with three brilliant vietories, and it looked as though they were the team to beat; but then the Birdies tasted the bitter bile of defeat at the hands of the rugged

Central Michigan squad. This loss was a confusing and a frustrating experience for the Redbirds, and even though they managed a tremendous comeback victory over Northern Michigan University, they were an erratic, spasmodic team for the remainder of the season. Losses to both Southern Illinois and Northern Illinois were no disgrace. Northern had the nation's top passer on their team in the person of George Bork; and Southern, a school of almost three times the size of Illinois State, pursues the policy of recruiting promising young athletes.

One of the Redbird's hardest fought victories came in the last game of the season when they met the Titans of Wesleyan on the crosstown rival's home field. After a heartbreaking struggle the Birdies finally managed, by one last gargantuan effort, to move out ahead and win the game 13-7.

John Court held the quarterback spot for the bulk of the season, and he relied mainly on the fine running ability of his backfield; seldom did he take to the air. Ron Schieber was again top ground gainer for the Redbirds with a 4.7 per play average, but teammate Bill Vance was close on his heels with a 4.0 average per play. The two fleet halfbacks scored a total of 49 points, with Bill Vance copping top

JV FOOTBALL

Testing Ground for Varsity Team

Combining the fine coaching of Warren Crews and Bob Koehler and the talent of the young reserve squad, the JV Redbirds once again compiled a very notable season record. Overall, our team and its opponents were very evenly matched. The junior Birdies gained four victories while they lost one and tied another. Their schedule began with a disheartening opening season loss to Western. All in all, the future of the ISNU varsity gridders seems to be safely in the hands of the many talented men of the junior turfers, who will bear this heavy burden.

A man to keep an eye on is "Irish" O'Reilly. This young halfback is one of the best prospects for varsity competition next year. O'Reilly carried the bulk of the offense via the protection given by such stalwarts as Jack Adams, offensive and defensive end, and in the line Frank Dutton.

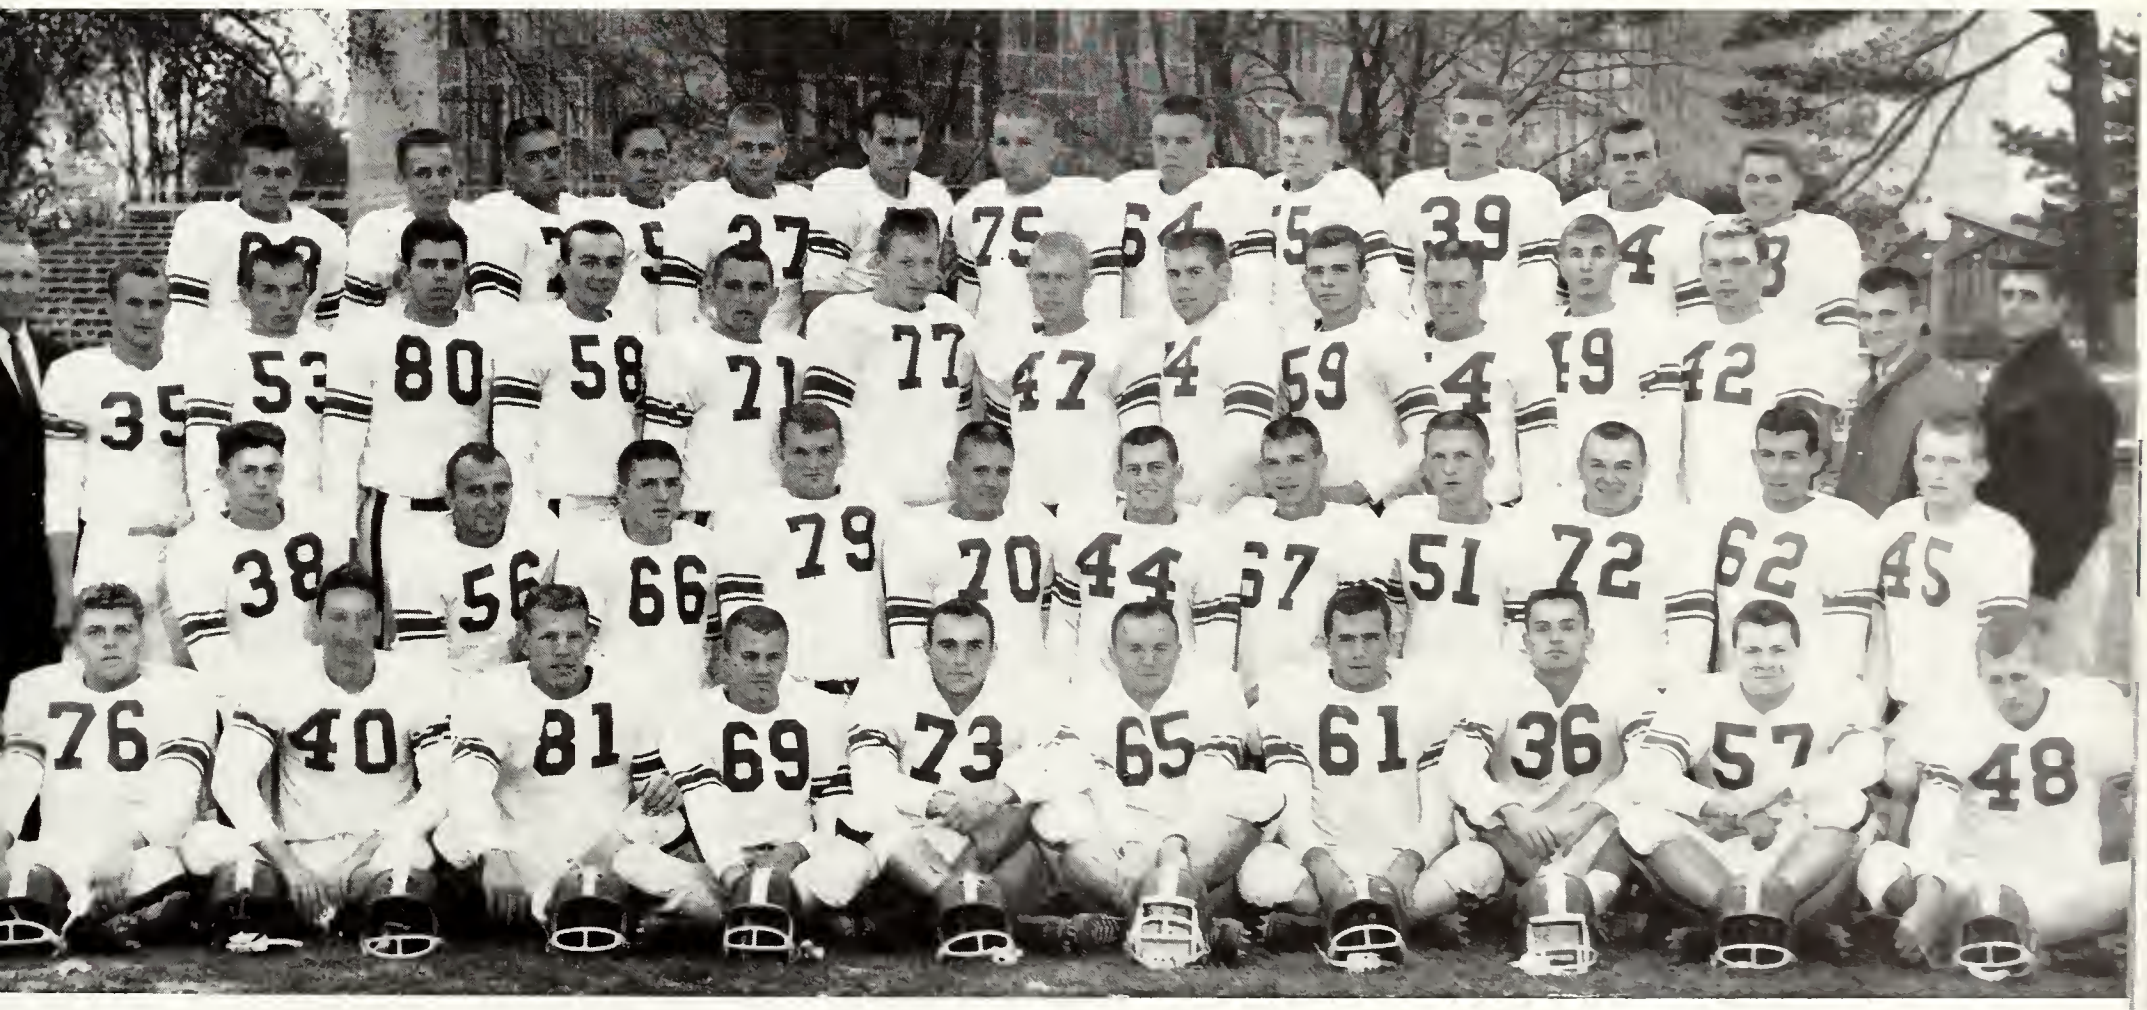

The second game of the year with Western Illinois University was unquestionably considered the most notable victory of the season. After sustaining a season opening loss at Macomb, the Birdies were prepared to be the victors in the second contest on McCormick Field; and victors they were in the resounding defeat of the junior Leathernecks, 27-19.

Another junior varsity member showing promise is Denny Burrell, who plays defensive right end. All indications point to another fine season in the making. The experience gained by playing JV ball cannot be overemphasized. It is a training ground in which the players learn from their mistakes and from their disappointments.

CROSS COUNTRY

Harriers End Year with Big Victory

Although the Redbird cross country team did not have an exceptionally good season, there were a number of highlights to make the year a notable one. Lady Luck was against the harriers as a number of unfortunate barrier blocked the "Birdies".

Swift and steady captain Mike Mittelstaedt had a season filled with frustration and discouragement. Mike had been injured all year but somehow managed to participate in the first five meets. He finally had to give up after his run against Northern. In the four final contests Jim Trout ably took over the captain's duties in Mittelstaedt's absence.

Tasty victory came to the Redbirds when they dropped Millikin University in the first meet of the year. The Big Blue from Millikin had a particularly strong team, winning the crown in the CCI. The noble team effort was enhanced when Mittelstaedt broke Millikin's home course record, an amazing feat with an injured foot.

The win over Bradley University was indeed gratifying, especially after the 20-32 loss they handed us the year before. Jim Trout led the victors with a time of 16:17 on Bradley's home course.

WRESTLING
Groaning Grapplers

A combination of talented freshmen and experienced veterans made for a very rewarding season on the mats for the Redbird wrestling squad. While Coach Eugene Hill expected exceptional performances from returning veterans, the stability given to the team by freshmen was a welcome surprise.

Out of the grunting, groaning, and squirming there emerged two distinctive Redbird grapplers: freshmen Terry Tamblyn and 137 pounder Bob Keller. Both men traveled to Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, to compete in the NAIA wrestling championships. Undoubtedly the most profound victory of the season came against the University of Illinois at Chicago in which the Birdies walked off with a clean sweep, 34-0. This was an indication of what the team could do when things were going their way.

Although as a team the Redbirds gave only a lukewarm showing at the IIAC conference meet at DeKalb, individually they had many sparkling moments. Keller and Tamblyn took Redbird firsts while a number of fourth places were scored at the meet. Bob Keller was the winner of the Hudelson trophy this season with eight pins to his credit while Terry Tamblyn and excellent heavy weight Dave Theesfeld were next in line with five pins apiece. Since experienced sophomores and veterans will be eyeing the Hudelson trophy, next year should prove to be a ripe season for the wrestling squad.

BASKETBALL

A Strong Finish

'Twas a rare season indeed. The Redbird five had one of their slowest starts in years. Although the Birdies were favored in most of the opening contests, they only managed to salvage one victory in six attempts. But, over Christmas vacation the team traveled to Quantico, Virginia, for the Quantico Tournament; it was here that the men seemed to receive a vital boost which set them on their winning ways. Winning two out of three games at the tournament was the proverbial "shot in the arm" for the squad. This victory was the answer for bringing back the team's waning confidence, resulting in ten victories out of the next eleven games. Yes, 'twas a rare season indeed, since the Redbirds usually have the ability to start a season off in a very strong way.

Strange season that it was, the cracker-barrel contingent will have more to talk about than the weather. Strange season, yes; but, also, it was a good season. Coach Jim Collie's men won 15 games and lost 10 games against college opponents. Ending with a 4-4 conference record, our team tied for second place in the IIAC with Northern Illinois University. The year's end marked the loss of some very steady seniors. Most notable of those were Jim Ringel, Jim Moran, and Al Pickering. Jim Ringel, who scored 879 points in four years of basketball for Illinois State, was named honorary captain and most valuable player for the season just completed. This native from Bloomington ended his college career with 317 points during the past season.

The team was balanced by many fine new men who came up from last year's junior varsity squad. The leading Redbird scorer, and fourth in the conference, was Bob Sorrell, who maintained 14.8 points per game average as well as leading the squad in field goal accuracy with a .433 mark. Forward Wardell Vaughn, who has one season left as a Redbird, was top rebounder with an 8.3 per game mark. As a rebounder he was fourth in the conference. Vaughn was also close on the heels of Sorrell for top scoring honors, turning in a 13.8 points per game record for the 25 contests. Sophomore guard John Cruser was at the top of the heap in free throw accuracy with an .810 average from the line. Cruser received the Charles Hall Free Throw Award for his fine average.

Coach Collie caught in a pre-game locker room confab.

Intense Emotions

He was also first in the conference in free throws.

With the fine showing of the junior varsity, there is once again fine possibilities for the Redbird varsity five. The JVs lost only two games throughout the season, and these by slight margins. It is hoped, then, that for next season fresh material will fulfill the void left by the exiting seniors.

Returning lettermen who will supply much of the punch of the Birdie offense are previously mentioned Bob Sorrell, Wardell Vaughn, and John Cruser. Mueh is expected of Jim Conrad, who also played most of this season and whose height of 6′7″ should prove to be a great asset to the offensive attack. Mike Akin is another tall man who has possibilities.

As a team they scored an average of 70.6 points per game, while allowing 71.3 points per game to be seored against them. Onee again, as a team, the Birdies eompiled a percentage of .406 in field goals; and in free throw pereentage they ended the year with a fairly respeetable .650.

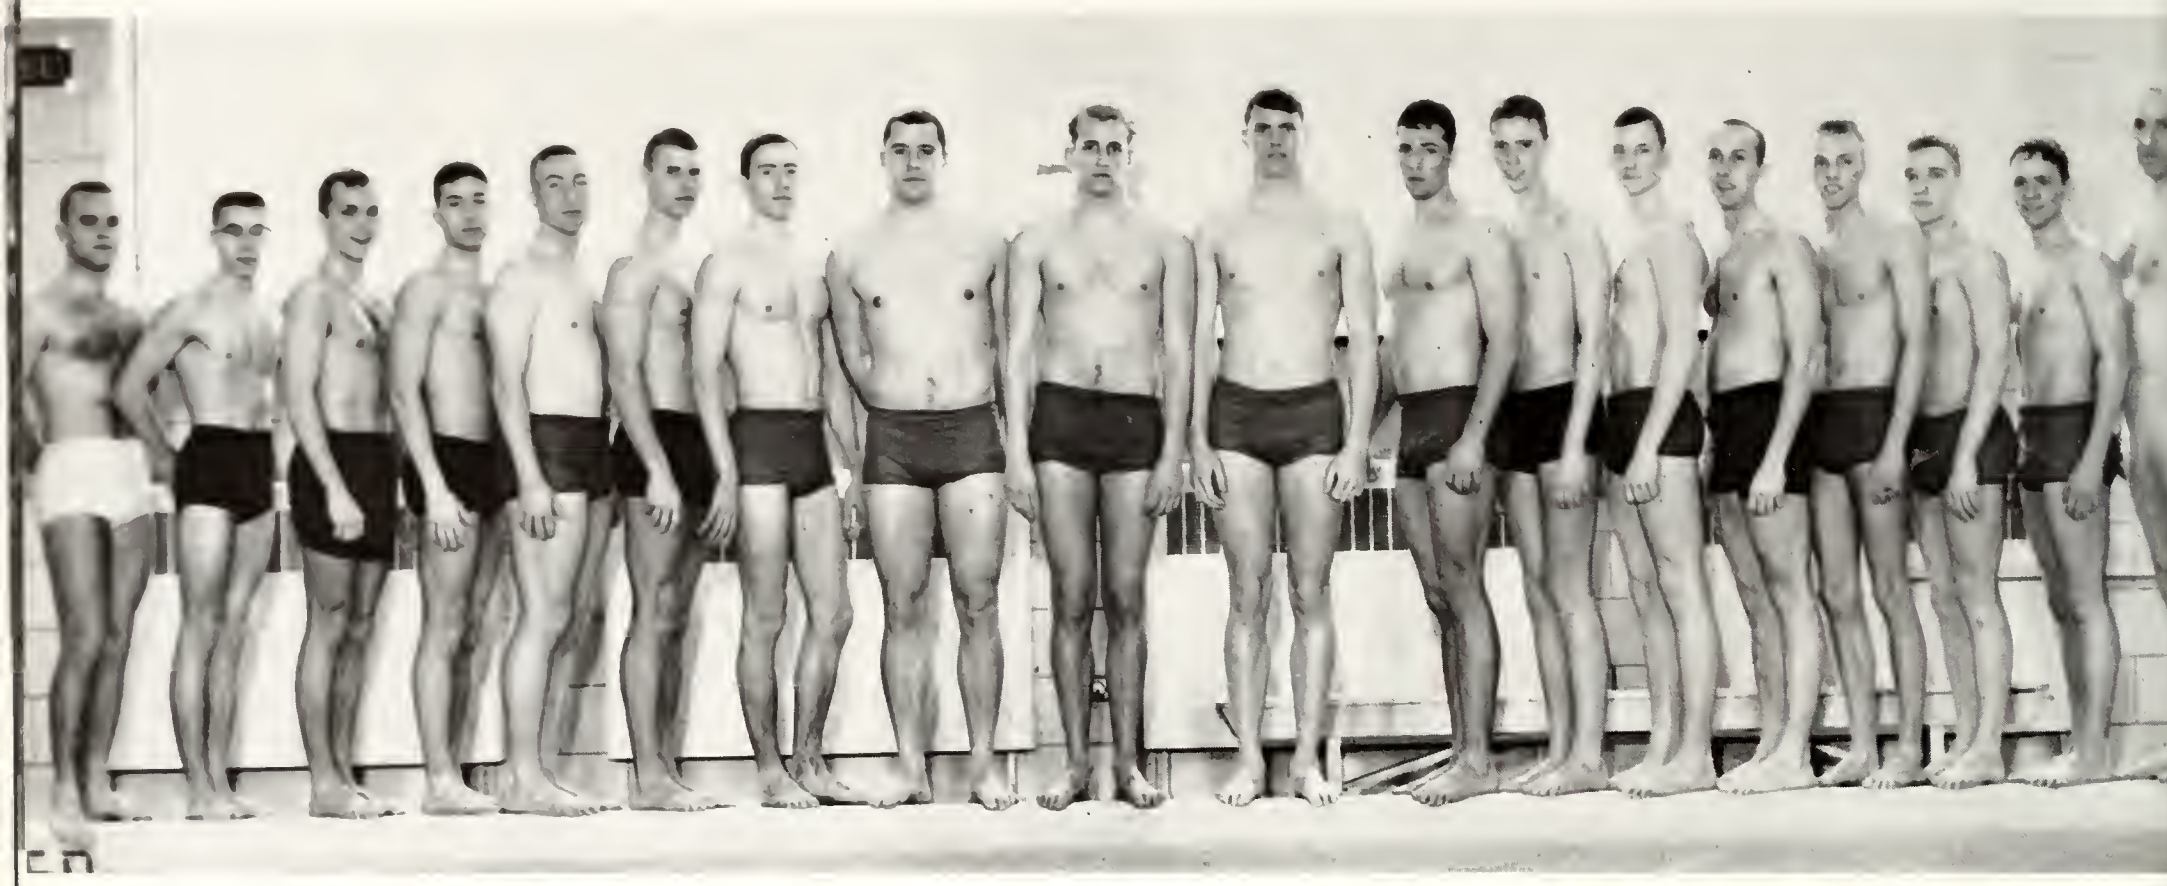

With the inauguration of Clifford Horton Gym on West Campus, some real surprises and possibilities are in store for the present and future athletes of Illinois State Normal. The possibility of attracting more athletes is eertainly present; and with the usual fine eoaching jobs by varsity mentor Jim Collie and junior varsity eoaeh Warren Crews, the future should be as shiny as a pot of gold.

SWIMMING

Tankers—Ripe with Experience

One problem after another has harassed the Redbird tankers. Inexperience plagued the team in past years and this season was no exception.

Although the team did have a losing season, there still came moments of excitement, especially manifested in backstroker Rudi Timmerman and in diver Dick Benson. Rudi captured first place in the 100-yard backstroke at the IIAC conference meet. Next year he can be relied upon as a consistent winner in the backstroke events. Dick Benson had his best performance of the year, and of his career, against Northern Illinois University when he piled up 204 total individual points. He finished the year with six first places in overall competition. Dick Kirgan was consistently in the money in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle, and Rich Russell, the long distance man, was also a frequent winner competing in the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events.

Coach Archie Harris feels with the better facilities in the new fieldhouse the team can move in only one direction—forward. All good things come, it seems, after periods of sacrifice. This year was sacrificed toward the invaluable gaining of experience; and since the team's only graduating tanker is Captain Charlie Smith, we can expect next year a team of returning veterans that will be vastly improved.

GYMNASTICS

Gymnasts Finish Encouraging Year

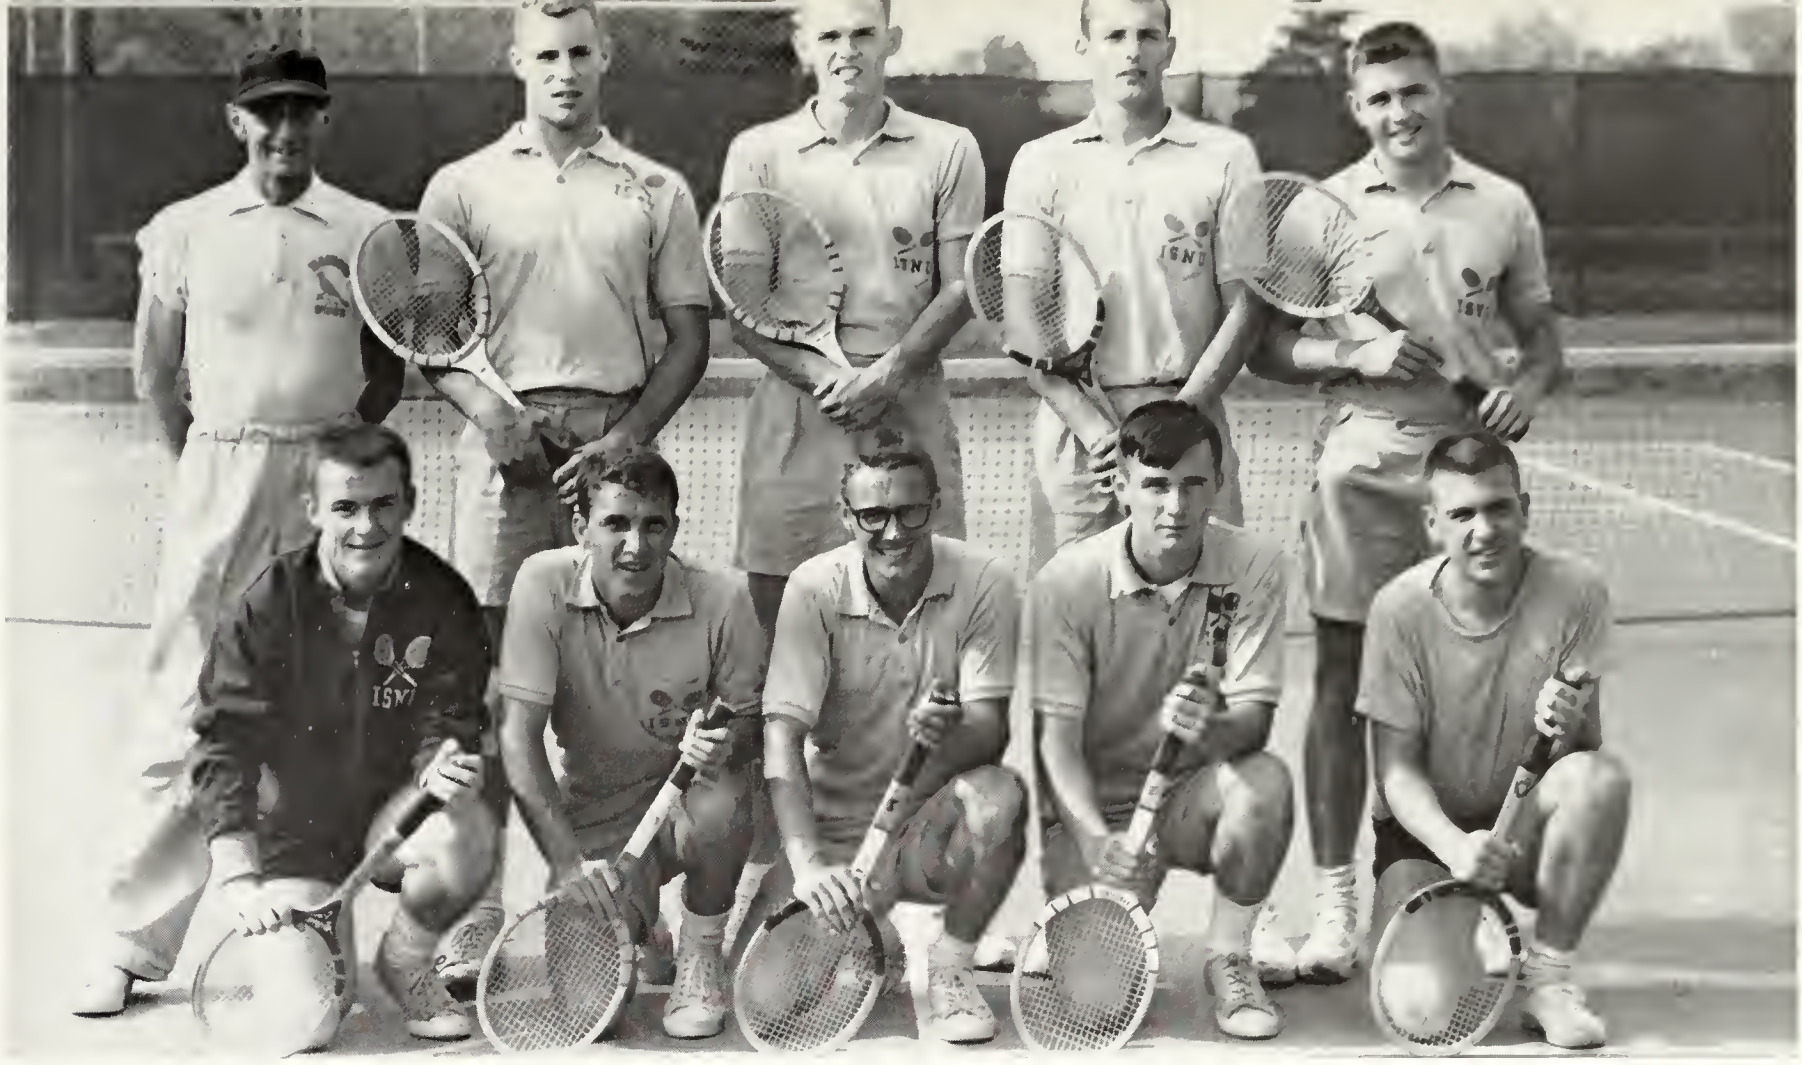

Under the excellent direction of Coach Wayne Truex, the Illinois State gymnastic team has progressed with leaps and bounds in the past two years. In fact, this year was probably the best season in the history of the Redbirds. If offense and defense may be applied to gymnastics, the Birdies for the first time in years were an offensive team.

Sophomore Paul Ziert, for the second year in a row, acted as the lifeblood of the gymnastic squad. He began the season by placing fifth in tumbling in the highly competitive Midwest Open at the University of Illinois. All season long he consistently took firsts in tumbling and free exercise, and showed well on the trampoline also. He ended the IIAC competition with firsts in tumbling and free exercise at the conference meet at Macomb. John Baltes was a solid all-around man while Tom Kordewick scored regularly on the trampoline. Both he and Ziert traveled to the NCAA meet where Ziert placed in a tie for fifth in tumbling.

TENNIS

Netmen Roar to Second Place in IIAC

The Redbird netters composed of a team of mainly freshmen and sophomores compiled a record of 3 wins and 3 losses in IIAC competition, and 6 wins and 4 losses in non-conference play.

Probably the most exciting and most interesting occurrence of the season was the IIAC Tournament at Macomb. The Redbirds went into the two-day meet like a lion, and led all competition until the finals when Southern Illinois University slipped by, 18-16, to take the crown.

The strange thing about the Redbird success in the Tournament was that not a "Birdie" managed to win one of the final contests, although seven second places were notched. The Redbirds, ending up in second place with 16 points, were 2 points behind Southern and 6 points ahead of third place Northern Illinois University.

Leading the Redbird attack was Captain Rich Snowberg who played in the number one position on the squad and had a season record of 6-9 in singles and 8-7 in doubles. Lothar Peistrup, number two man, was 9-7 in singles competition and a sparkling 12-4 in doubles. Dale Lego followed in the three slot with 7-9 in singles and 10-6 in doubles play. The Redbird's number four man was Bill Powell with a fine season record of 10-6 in singles and 12-4 in doubles. Dan Dutz worked the five spot with a season showing of 13-3 in brilliant singles play and 9-6 in doubles. John Balsis, who played his first season of college tennis, showed an amazing amount of skill in chalking up a season record of 9-6 in singles and 9-4 in doubles.

Linksmen Finish Successful Season

Boasting one of the most well-balanced ISNU golf teams in years, the linksmen, under the direction of Coach Howard Hancock and led by Co-Captains Ron Shadis and Burles Bennett, compiled a .500 season with a record of 10 wins and 10 losses.

Burles Bennett led the team with a season average of 77. Close on his heels with a mark of 78 was Ron Shadis, recipient of the senior scholastic award for the outstanding athlete. Breathing down his neck was Rusty Wells with a 79. Jim Palmer ended the year with an average of 80, and Roger LaRochelle finished with an 82 overall record.

BASEBALL

Birdies Stop Southern on a No Hitter

What began as a very promising baseball season ended on a rather dismal note as the diamondmen compiled a .250 record in IIAC play, but in non-conference competition had a 7-3 record.

Like most of the Redbird sports, there were several outstanding individuals who made the season interesting. Norm Torry was elected captain for the second straight season, and was the leading hitter with a .317 average for the year. He also led in RBI's with 24 and in home runs with five.

The highlight of the season came as Bill Evans pitched his way to a no-hitter over the powerful Southern Illinois nine by a score of 10-0. Evans had a season earned run average of 1.8.

After winning the first 4 games of the season, the "Birdies" slowed down considerably because of the lack of consistent hitting and pitching.

Wins over Bradley University and Big-Ten University of Wisconsin were great performances and showed what the team could accomplish when things were going in their favor.

TRACK

A Record Breaking Season in Which

Lacking the depth necessary for a winning team, the cindermen never managed a high over-all team score but always had a number of tracksters notching top positions in meets throughout the year.

This was a record shattering season. A number of new records were established, both local and state. Captain Don Korte chalked up a new school 300 yard dash record at :31.9. Korte also set a new state intercollegiate record in the 220 yard dash at :21. Another consistent winner and record breaker was Mike Mittelstaedt, who set a school record in the two-mile run at 9:30.6. Mittelstaedt broke the old record on three separate occasions. Norm English, another outstanding "Birdie", made ISNU history when he pushed himself to an all-time State Normal pole vault record of 13 feet at the Elmhurst Invitational under inclement weather conditions.

The IIAC Meet was a study in frustration for the ISNU cindermen when speedster Don Korte, after qualifying in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, had to withdraw because of a pulled muscle. And, Mike Mittelstaedt had to drop from what appeared to be one of his finest two-mile runs of the season after an injury to his foot half-way through the race. A ray of hope came when Bill McConkey broke a Redbird record in the high hurdle qualifications at :15.2.

Previous to the IIAC Meet, the cindermen traveled to Elmhurst for an Invitational Meet and polled 5th place among 10 tough teams. This was probably one of the best team efforts although the track was partially under water and there were flurries of snow in the air. It was under these adverse conditions that English broke the pole vault record, and Korte won both the 220 and 100 yard dashes. Mittelstaedt latched onto 2nd place while Don Miller captured 3rd place with his shot put prowess.

INTRAMURALS
Working Together

Through the times, college students have released their pent-up emotions and showed their extraordinary sense of ingenuity by swallowing goldfish, by wearing raccoon coats and saying "twenty-three skidoo," by jamming into telephone booths, by sitting on telephone poles, and by walking 50 miles in a single day. Dr. Eugene Hill, who is head of the intramural program, has taken up the cry heard round the world from college students and has organized activities specifically designed to bring out the students' skills. Dr. Hill has introduced such recreational activities as bowling, golf, swimming, and tennis. Regularly scheduled games and tournaments are planned throughout the year; the events culminated in the intramural spring highlight, the off-campus and dorm track meet.

This program is designed to bring out the best sportsmanship, spirit, and ability of the men and women. One receives in proportion to the amount he gives; but it is a certainty that the least they can gain from the activities is a sharper appetite.

But those of tradition would rather die.

And let the spirit of youth reside.

Alone and empty, McCormick Gymnasium gets one final request by the organist: a requiem.

Faculty and Departments

The professor of the twentieth century is not the stereotyped, self-possessed pedagogue often portrayed in caricature. He is a human personality whose life encompasses home, community, nation, world, and also vocation. Although he may seem the towering intellectual giant, he is still just a student himself. Beyond his routine duties the instructor is engaged in tedious research or busily mastering new techniques.

What is more representative of our school than its motto unless it be our first family—President and Mrs. Bone, John, and Robert Jr.

PRESIDENT BONE

A brilliant red vest and an engaging smile have become a trademark to university students. A respected trademark it is, for to citizens of the community Dr. Bone has come to represent that which we most admire and cherish about our school. To the student body, however, Dr. Bone is much more than a symbol of academic progress and prestige. In a university as large as ours, members of the administrative staff must necessarily remain unknown entities to the greater portion of students; however, they need not remain aloof and uncommunicative. Countless students who have only shaken his hand and stammered a few words of greeting feel a warm kinship to our honored president. They have seen him in the cold and wet of a disappointing football game, cheering on a hopeless cause; they have watched him cross campus, never too busy to stop and chat with a friend or greet an awe-struck freshman. These simple acts of loyalty and good will have endeared a man to an entire student body — each who counts him as a friend. It is to this man that the yearbook staff pays a most heart-felt tribute which cannot begin to encompass the dimensions of our sincere esteem and gratitude.

Dr. Bone exchanges a cheery bon voyage with Mr. Kaiser, who was instrumental in planning the European trip.

But stop and think: who created these departments, who chose the faculty, and who admitted you to this institution? Patiently working and striving to make this a better place in which to learn, these dedicated men and women know no bounds. UNIVERSITY SERVICES

The Many Tasks of a University

The student and instructor spend three months away from the university; however, when they return, all is ready for classes to begin. Logic would, therefore, indicate that there is someone or something more vital to the permanence of the university than students and faculty. That all vital element might at first escape attention, but a careful inquiry would undeniably point to the University Services as that indispensable element.

Working year round to maintain the many services which are often taken for granted by unthinking students are the hundreds of non-academic employees of our University. The services provided by these wide-spread branches of our school are basic to a smoothly functioning college; they include such essentials as the Housing, Publicity, and Duplicating Offices. As students approach graduation, the services of the Bureau of Appointments and Alumni Offices appear as all-important. Of utmost value to the student body is the work of the Health Service and Student Employment Office. The Business Office, Security and Traffic Office, Test Service, Photographic Service, and Mail Service are other facilities which provide for student needs. Not to be forgotten or minimized is the responsibility held by the Maintenance Office of keeping a beautiful campus in which we can take deserved pride.

The All Important First Chapter

While the basic responsibility of a liberal arts college is to introduce the student to a specialized field and prepare him for advanced study, the teachers' college cannot dismiss its duties here. Beyond a mastery of subject matter must come an understanding and application of current teaching techniques. In short, the fundamental curriculum of our University is professional education, whether it be in the division of Elementary, Secondary, or Special Education. Every student no matter what his classification is thus enrolled in one of these divisions and will graduate a trained teacher in the field of his choice. Increased emphasis upon progressive and profitable education makes the need for better equipped teachers imperative. Perhaps no finer guide could be suggested to the potential educator than our University's motto which reads, ". . . gladly would he learn and gladly teach."

Dr. Nanee heads Elementary Edueation, our largest division.

Such willing, open minds—eager to learn . . . Enormous is the responsibility aecepted by one who would probe into those minds.

The object is obscure to a camera lens but vivid to the child.

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION AND JUNIOR HIGH

The teacher instructs; the child learns; education is taking place. The division of Elementary Education endeavors to prepare students to teach the principles of responsibility, democracy, and sensitivity, as well as the subject matter to young children. Emphasizing resource areas in art, foreign language, speech arts, and library, additional student teaching and extended courses in these spheres have been added. Students planning a Junior High career usually master a block preparation, language arts and social studies, in addition to a specialized field such as natural science, mathematics, art, or music. A four year study of elementary education graduates will help to point out the strengths and weaknesses in the division and in the curriculum.

The act of experimentation rewards junior high minds.

SECONDARY EDUCATION
End or Beginning

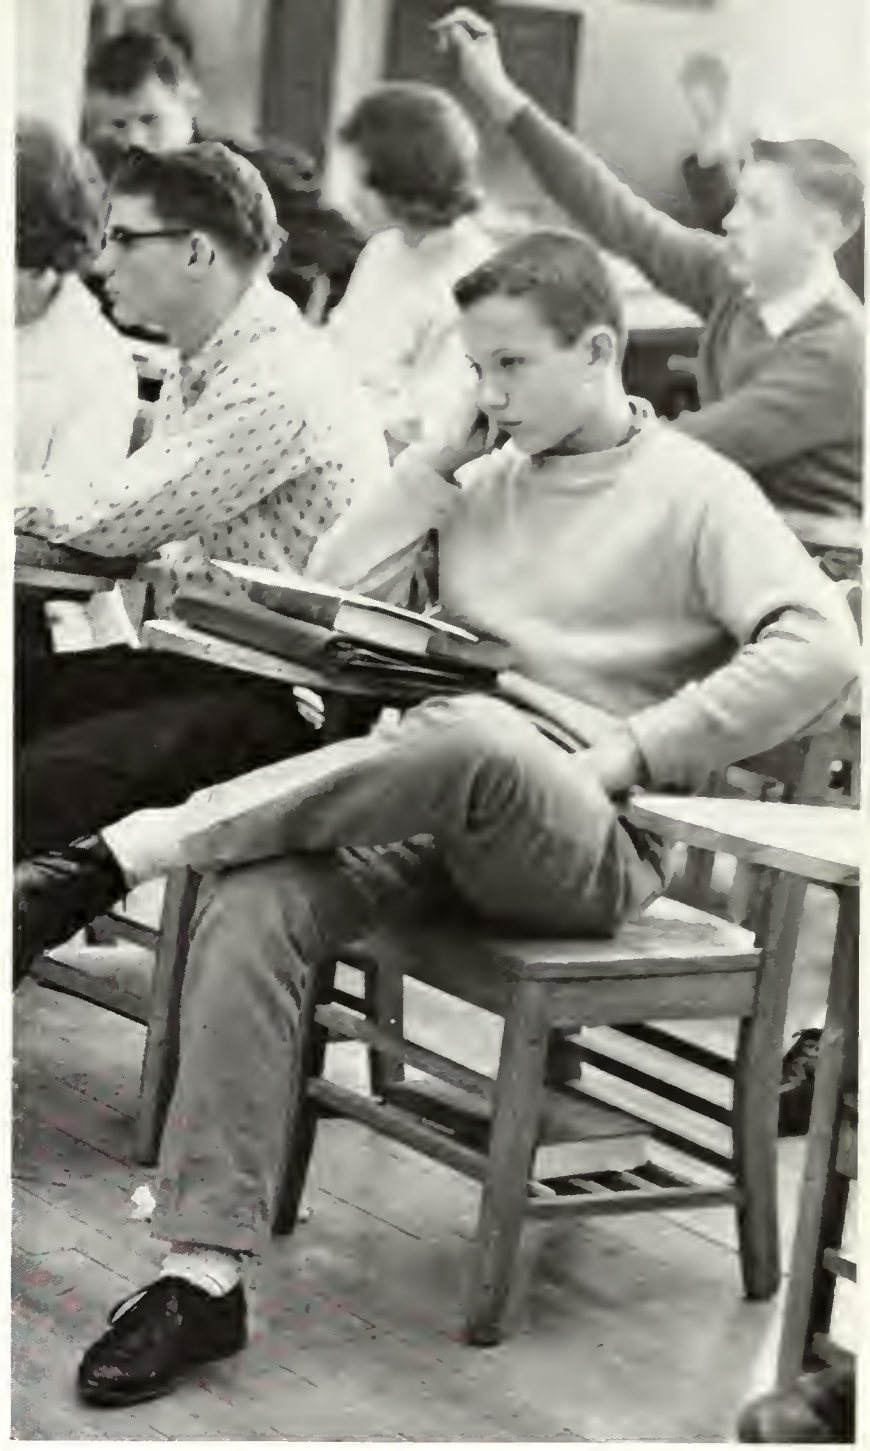

Diversity marks the division of our curriculum termed Secondary Education. This encompassing field includes all students who have chosen to major or minor in agriculture, art, biological science, business, English, foreign languages, geography, health and physical education, home economics, industrial arts, library science, mathematics, music, physical science, psychology, social science, and speech. The common denominator of these varied fields is the teaching situation; in other words, both the English and the art major will practice his skill in a high school. No one building houses Secondary Education, for in part it is represented across campus in the classrooms of Schroeder, Centennial, Felmley, and North Halls, and by the many students who pursue studies in this category.

Activities involving group participation offer high school students the opportunity to share ideas.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Toward Achieving Self-Sufficiency

The aim of education is to offer an opportunity; the challenge is to adapt the learning experience to the ability of the learner.

There is an unexpressible dignity which comes from doing for oneself that no disability or defect can ever overshadow.

The division of Special Education is responsible for preparing teachers of exceptional children. By providing educational services for the blind, deaf, mentally retarded, and other children whose needs cannot be completely met in the regular school program, teachers help in more nearly realizing the American ideal of education for all. Future teachers work with these children through the educational and diagnostic program of the laboratory school, Psychological Counseling Service, Hearing Laboratory, Reading Laboratory, and Speech Clinic. He learns how the whole educational program must cooperate in helping the exceptional child attain as high a degree of self-sufficiency as possible; moreover, he sees that they receive an education which will enable them to be contributing members of society within the limits of their capacities.

Training the vocational agrieulture teaeher is the goal of the Agriculture department. This end is aeeomplished by providing a thorough edueation in teehnical as well as professional agrieulture. The University Farm with 470 aeres and new buildings provides the equipment and faeilities for the raising and breeding of sheep, beef eattle, poultry, swine, and milk cows and the resourees for studying soils, crops, and horticultural products. ART

The Capacity of Creation in Man

Dr. Hoover gives direction to the plans of the Art department.

Innovation has been the common thread running through the plans of the Art department this year. By enlarging its faculty to include new instructors who are national prize-winning artists and specialists in their area of research, this department has buttressed the foundation for fulfilling its three-fold purpose—to prepare the finest instructors, to encourage art students to specialize so that they may realize the fruits of their talent, and to provide facilities so that all may discover the values of creative art expression. With the recent introduction of new talent and specialists into the Art department and the approval to offer the doctorate degree, all eyes turn to the future with the greatest expectation.

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE

Studying Life

Sinee his origin man has eontinually and with an aeeelerating pace probed into the seerets of biology, hoping to approaeh through a series of eloser and eloser approximations the true interpretations of life's mysteries. Man's progress in the eonquest of disease, in developing new methods of farming, and in improving sanitation is eommon knowledge; but his even more startling progress into the ultrastrue-ture and funetion of the eell, ineluding the gene, puts him on the threshold of explaining and under-standing life. Yet the seope of biology is not eonfined to the realms of pure seienee. Biologieal prineiples will have to be used if we are to solve the great soeial problems faeing us today—prejudiee, intoler-anee, extreme nationalism, exploding populations, and depletion of natural resourees.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Organizational Skill and Technique

Keeping up with business practices and with the latest teaching techniques will be made easier by the new facilities in Jonathan Baldwin Turner Hall. The business data processing room of this building will house a digital computer and integrated data processing equipment which will be used by several business administration classes. Shorthand and typing instruction will be made easier by an electronic sound distribution system enabling a student to write shorthand or typewrite from dictation at any one of five speeds by using earphones and pushing the proper button at his desk. The dictation is transmitted from tape recorders and record players installed in the central control panel. Students of retailing will be aided by a retail selling laboratory for merchandise display and selling.

EDUCATION AND PSYCHOLOGY

A Basic Measure

"Education makes people easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave." Thus, our freedom and security depends upon a high educational level with stress upon advanced, critical thinking. Growing to meet these very needs, the Department of Education and Psychology is initiating a program which includes a specialist degree necessitating schooling one year beyond the master level and a doctorate degree in school administration. A constant re-evaluation of its undergraduate offerings in light of the best current research in teacher education typifies the emphasis placed by the department upon a superior curriculum. To the future teacher and educator American hopes are turned; therefore, the task of training more competent, qualified teachers assumes national importance and commands a relentless vigil.

ENGLISH
Wealth in Words

The knowledge of his first language is essential to the individual not only in communicating his opinions but also in understanding the expressions of those thoughts and opinions held by others. The student of English first gains a comprehension of the mechanics of his subject; through this knowledge he can then appreciate more fully the wealth of thought in literature. The English department faces a dual task: introducing all students to the essential processes of our written and spoken language and providing English majors with a thorough background. Means of attaining such goals include expansion of facilities as well as course offerings; new classroom aids supplement the changes of curriculum for both the graduate and undergraduate.

A wealth of knowledge and beauty is stored in the pages of good literature from the pens of both classical and contemporary authors.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE
Words Link Worlds

Toleranee, understanding, compatibility — these are the qualities which Americans must possess if they are to retain their position as world leaders. Tolerance must go further than mere acceptance of strange ideas and cultures, for it demands extensive knowledge of foreign peoples which in time will lead to understanding. The Foreign Language department strives to present materials that will best promote a comprehension of other civilizations. Instructors challenge their students to learn the grammar, literature, geography, and the culture of the country by giving life to the foreigner and his language. Numerous insights into daily life suggest the compatibility which is neeessary for the national and personal growth and so a triangle of peaceful human relationships is fulfilled and strengthened.

"Our study is the outdoors," suggests Dr. Watterson. "How little we know about our planet. Still we must explore it."

GEOGRAPHY

Earthen Ball—Celestial Heavens

Change is a significant part of man's environment in both its physical and human aspects. He cannot ignore progress, but must incorporate it with established theory and knowledge to be used in further experiment and advancement. Air and photo map interpretation is one of the courses which will be proposed by the Geography department to broaden the student's perspective of geographical concepts. To benefit from such advanced study, however, a fundamental background in the subjects of geology, climate, and weather is essential. Through its highly specialized instructors, the Geography department provides a wide and comprehensive series in both physical and cultural geography. This acquaintance with both geographical aspects develops an awareness of the people, their land, and their resources.

MEN'S HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Mind and Body

"Professional preparation in physical edueation (and athletics) requires an edueational baekground balaneed between theory and praetiee." Providing this preparation is the goal of the Men's Health and Physical Education department. Due to the new facilities available with the opening of the Clifford E. Horton gymnasium, expansion in the intramural program as well as an increase in the number of intercollegiate teams will be possible. Feneing, weightlifting, soeeer, and water polo are some of the sports which may be added to the program. The department is also planning an extensive graduate program with a doetoral degree being offered in the future. All these innovations will further promote the physical, mental, and emotional well-being of the student who has elected this eurrieulum.

Dr. O'Connor reviews the qualifications of participating teams.

The teacher checks the form and position of a student as he builds his strength through weightlifting.

Students of physical education not only gain valuable skills from camping experiences, but they also have fun while learning.

WOMEN'S HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION

A Reservoir of Future Enjoyment

The physical education program of the University is designed to satisfy our physiological need for movement. But the learning which occurs in the fulfillment of this need is static unless physical, intellectual, emotional, and social potentials are integrated. Toward the achievement of this ideal the Women's Physical Education department strives and with the future expansion of facilities will more nearly achieve. Of most importance will be the advancement of the majors program which should attract greater numbers to the department. The expanded resources to be provided by the addition to McCormick and the acquisition of the men's facilities will provide not only valuable classroom space but will allow students, faculty, and non-academic employees to use recreational facilities.

Dr. Kelly, Dr. Frye, and Dr. Gray carefully examine plans of the new addition housing the swimming pool.

Dr. Davis inspects this paisley textile for color and texture.

A Practical Art

Because the home and family are the most vital units in American life, students in the Home Economics department are carefully educated in both the professional and personal aspects of their field. The purpose is two-fold: to better understand the family and to become a good teacher. All students who major in home economics qualify as vocational home economics teachers. The department is anticipating a big move to the new Practical Arts building located on West Campus. Their new home will provide a place for more detailed research in foods, clothing, textiles and household equipment, and a modern child development laboratory which will make possible both indoor and outdoor observation.

The beginning—creation and design. The actual construction—fine seams and delicate drape. The finished product—a beautiful gown.

Dr. Porter confers on the usage of a plan.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Machinery Skill

Teaching about our industrialized society, the Industrial Arts department is constantly incorporating new innovations into the program in order that technical education will reflect current trends. An industrial arts course for elementary majors and summer graduate workshops offering courses in production methods and welding techniques present lab experiences with rigorous academic work. With the opening of the Jonathan Baldwin Turner Hall, new horizons in teaching methods, materials, and facilities will come into view. Facilities, to include driver simulators, are to be added to Safety and Driver Education to make this one of the outstanding programs in the Midwest. A well equipped laboratory for power mechanics will also expand the offerings in industrial education.

LIBRARY SCIENCE
Mankind's Record

Locked between the eovers of every book is the key to wisdom and understanding; therefore, the student of library seienee assumes responsibility for a grave task—categorizing and cataloguing the written word. Contemplating the much-needed library annex, the Library Scienee department is revising its curriculum to incorporate a broader eourse of study. To prepare the student for the role of teacher-librarian is an obvious goal, but to stimulate an appreciation and awareness of literature as an art, a seienee, and a diseipline is a far more diffieult task. The cultivation of literary sensitivity may be pursued through the numerous facilities available at Milner Library; therefore, the library can serve both as an experimental laboratory in which to test new-learned skills and also as an adventure in edueation.

Dr. Hertel proudly displays plan of proposed library annex to Dr. Hall, Betty Boardman, and Betty McLaughlin.

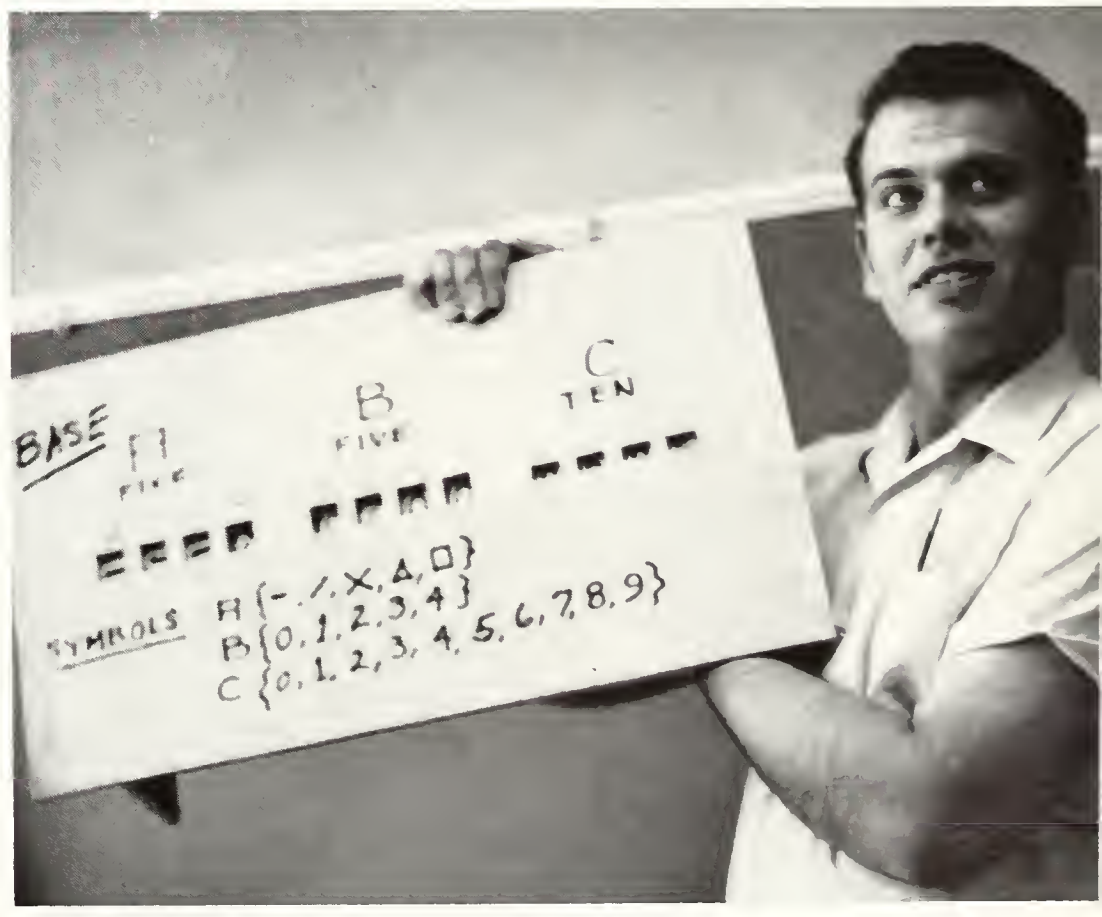

Dr. McCormick formulates an advanced problem to aid the student in rediscovering his own latent skills.

MATHEMATICS

In a Modern World

Numerous new applications in the social as well as physical sciences and emphasis upon abstract concepts and structures characterize modern mathematics. It is most significant and gratifying to note a more general awareness of the fact that mathematics is a dynamic and growing science. This growth is apparent in all areas but is most explosive in the subjects of algebra, topology, and statistics. The purpose of the department is to keep abreast of modern developments and to offer a balanced curriculum which gives attention to both theory and application. Foundation courses in the basic disciplines of algebra and geometry provide an adequate background for teachers to continue their training in a specialized field. This study equips them for innovating the new high school curriculum.

A student proudly displays his work on various number systems.

An instructor can provide a favorable learning situation, but learning only occurs through study and practice.

MUSIC

Music—of the Heart and the Mind

To appreeiate musie as a eomplex skill, one must develop the intelleet and open the heart. Classes in the history and theory of musie enlarge the seope of the mind, and then this mental growth can be thrust into the rigorous test of applieation. Musie is a praetieal as well as an abstraet art. The future teacher learns not only to develop the understanding of his pupils, but he also strives to inspire a love for musie and to discipline the child's inherent talent in sueh a way that the student will continually experiment with this newly found knowledge. Inclusive edueation calls for an instruetor who has developed his full potential as a musician as well as an edueator so that he can readily understand the struggles and frustrations of an aspiring beginner.

Sharing ideas are Dr. Rye and Mr. Sanders.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE

Expand..Challenge

The Physical Scienee department has instituted new and ehallenging courses designed to present the student with a comprehensive knowledge of the subject matter. Honor eourses for freshmen, individual laboratory researeh for seniors, and advanced eourses for graduate students prepare each student for the task of sharing his understanding. In order to aequaint the student with modern teaehing methods and to extend the graduate researeh faeilities, an addition to the seienee building is under eonstruetion. Eaeh student may now have an opportunity to expand and extend his knowledge by utilizing this new equipment. The teachers trained in this department will eertainly be qualified to take their plaees in the elassrooms of tomorrow.

Dr. Ryder pauses in his work to give us a fleeting glance.

Concentration—equipment—successful experiment.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Eras and Epochs

The social, political, economic and intellectual upheavals of our modern age have emphasized the importance of the social sciences. Available to the student of the social sciences are tools which can help him come to terms with some of the complexities of human existence. Tools provided by such disciplines as anthropology, economics, history, political science, and sociology enable the student to acquire new perspectives and to obtain a larger measure of understanding of human beings and their behavior. By recognizing his deep roots in the past and understanding their relevance to the present, mankind can progress perhaps toward a more orderly world. Obtaining this understanding has been man's past dream; tomorrow may it be a reality for a new generation of men.

Dr. Keeley is pictured in friendly consultation with colleagues.

The evolution of man is a complex study.

Little does a child realize the importance of effective speech, but the adult hopes to correct any deficiency.

SPEECH
Medium of Contact

Scholars estimate that from seventy to ninety percent of man's working hours are occupied in some type of oral activity. It is predicted that man will depend more and more upon the oral mediums for meeting the daily challenges of living. Education, particularly, as a result of mechanization, will become oral in nature. Speech departments must meet the challenge of educating future teachers to live in an oral world. The ISNU Speech department is initiating steps to meet the future's challenge. The department is becoming experimental to develop new methods, investigate and reinterpret old premises, and generally adapt to needs of the future. The department now has a director of research and has aspirations to establish a center for communications research and critical study.

Students

A portion of everyone's personality is purposely masked or unavoidably obscured by the customs and mores which have become incorporated into campus routine. Perhaps it is for the best that each of us subordinates a portion of his individuality as he accepts rules devised for the common good; however, we fail ourselves miserably if we allow too much of that which is uniquely ours to fade, becoming just another picture in the book.

A practice teacher's first experienee comes with that roll list. Roll taking may be a simple task, but it can establish rapport.

Karen Wilson busies herself with seleeting proper materials.

STUDENT TEACHING

Hope and Fear Intermingled

One who formally transmits the eulture of his partieular soeiety must aequire skill in many areas and through many media. Although a knowledge of materials is essential, experienee aeeords inestimable value to the future edueator. Only in the elassroom ean he observe, understand, and regulate the learning proeess of the individual student and of the group. There he fails, errs, and sueeeeds in his teaehing endeavors. The student teaeher has the advantage of learning not only from his own attempts but from the experience of his superiors. His eritie teaeher observes and eriticizes his efforts. Thus, student teaehing becomes one of the most important parts of teacher training. Realizing this importanee, our University has developed an extensive and ever-growing system for the in-service training of its students. Classrooms in many and various areas of Illinois contain student teachers from Illinois State Normal University. Some students, however, gain their student teaching experience on eampus from the programs offered by University High Sehool and Thomas Metcalf Grade School. In such a manner,

Karen discovers how important it is to give concise, clear directions. Here, students respond to her suggestions with eagerness.

"One, two, step," rings in students' ears.

Karen demonstrates the step with spirit.

Rewards for the student teacher are many, but the greatest thrill a waiting her is the first glow of understanding upon a tiny faee.

Preparing bulletin boards is part of the job.

they prepare themselves to beeome a neeessary part of the vast eommunieations system that soeiety employs to perpetuate itself in its youth.

So we have presented faets about student teaehing, but what about the spirit of student teaehing? Four years of training are supposedly direeted toward this one erowning experienee. One hears his friends talk about it; next one sees his friends leaving to begin it; then they return and praise it. Junior year we will fill out eomplieated data sheets; senior year

At times, however, her task beeomes one of channeling unharnessed enthusiasm.

Student teachers gain valuable experience by working with the individual.

the assignment is in our hands, and we are dazed with excitement and anticipation. Although we know that we have been ably prepared academically to meet this first and biggest challenge of our teaching careers, we feel apprehension and anxiety. Meeting the critic teacher, observing our future pupils, and touring school grounds are all a part of the first introduction to this new experience. From that first day before a class when shining faces reflect their interest and willing cooperation, the student teacher knows why he chose teaching as his profession, and the prospective teacher is glad that he did.

"What do you suppose is the next step?"

"All you have to do is watch and follow me."

As part of her graduate program, Carol Reed works with ISNU debate team. Here she discusses debate proposition with two students.

Graduate student Connie Hamilton is shown in her capacity as consultant for the production "Blood Wedding."

GRADUATE STUDENTS

The Second Step

Perhaps the most phenomenal growth in recent years at our University has been in its graduate program. At the present time our school boasts of some five hundred graduate students; however, to picture only an inereased enrollment would be less than just to the expansion of our graduate program. Only last year the school was authorized to confer the Master of Arts and Master of Seienee degrees in addition to the degree of Master of Scienee in Edueation. Moreover, the degrees of Doctor of Philosophy, Doetor of Edueation, and Specialist in Edueation are now being offered in school administration.

Undergraduates are sometimes puzzled as to the exact role of the graduate student. He must, of eourse, hold a Baehelor's degree from an aeeredited college to be admitted for advanced study. Onee here he finds that the graduate program of ISNU emphasizes "independent seholarly investigation and dedieated researeh." Perhaps the most vivid transition from undergraduate to graduate school is a greater dependenee upon personal study and observation, unaided by a faeulty supervisor.

Requisite for sueeessful eompletion of the Master's degree is either a thesis paper or a eomprehensive examination. A total of thirty-two hours of advanced study is also required for graduation. So in a brief sketeh, we can see the various aspeets of the new, ever-growing graduate program.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

An International View for Campus

We students are proud to boast of the saerifiees we have made in order to obtain a eollege eduea-tion, but how many of us have traveled half way around the world in seareh of knowledge? Many of the foreign students on our eampus, however, ean proudly make sueh a statement. Hailing from such faraway plaees as Austria, Greeee, Hong Kong, Jamaica, Korea, Panama, Sierra Leone, Trinidad, Thailand, and Viet Nam, our foreign students lend an atmosphere of internationalism to the eampus seene. We as students of Illinois State Normal ean be proud that our University was ehosen by these students from other lands as the educational institution from whieh to reeeive formal courses and aetual experienee with Ameriean people, their eulture, and their eustoms. We are also pleased with their ehoiee.

Gathering around a piano in the dormitory, these students came together to share the songs and melodies typieal of their eountry.

SENIORS

SENIOR ADVISORY BOARD

The world of the senior epitomizes all that is basic to collegiate life. From the retiring freshman to the junior sophisticate the senior stands as a landmark of achievement. Least impressed by his grandeur is the senior himself, for he is forced to shed the aura of his title and accept its responsibilities. The challenge of student teaching looms before him, momentarily pushing aside thoughts of leaving the familiar for the obscure, sometimes frightening work-a-day world. A slowly disruptive force is loosening the ties that united the class in preceding years; however, that force is counteracted by the Senior Advisory Board which functions to re-establish links of unity between class members by introducing and interesting them in the activities of the Alumni Club.

Four Years Have Come to an End.

Night foreshadows the death of one existence, but the glow of lights illuminates the bright future awaiting graduating seniors.

JUNIORS

JUNIOR ADVISORY BOARD

The exaltation of arriving at a midway point colors the outlook of returning juniors. For so long they have awaited the day when they could proudly boast of their superiority over the struggling underclassmen. Dormitory life, classes, and meetings—these have not changed—rather the student's perspective has been altered in his ascent to lasting maturity. The convenience of pre-registration is obscured by reminders that soon college experiences will be just memories of a past, never to be recaptured, day. Moments for such profound meditation are few indeed as the junior immerses himself in campus activities. Official representative of the Junior Class is its Advisory Board, which promotes class enthusiasm through sponsorship of a homecoming float and of special significance the Junior-Senior Prom, a formal dance held at the year's end for graduating seniors.

SOPHOMORE ADVISORY BOARD

Newness, yet familiarity; enthusiasm, yet maturity; individuality, yet conformity—these contrasts of university life are personified within the sophomore class. Academic worthiness is proved; the question no longer taunts, "Am I prepared for college?" Although the first challenge of a college curriculum has been met, the enormity of six more semesters still weighs heavily in the recesses of the mind. A concerted effort to make the class an integral part of campus life replaces the doubts of scholastic achievement. The Sophomore Advisory Board endeavors to assist in this transformation. Uppermost in their minds was the Sophomore Cotillion, which promised to be the best ever. All efforts were directed toward this goal and its fulfillment brought recognition to the entire class.

FRESHMEN

FRESHMAN ADVISORY BOARD

College—the opening of new doors, new experiences, and new friends . . . Everything is fresh; everything is exciting; everything is confusing. An atmosphere of wide-eyed expectancy prevails as another freshman class begins its journey through the four years of university life. All at once school becomes a full-time job. Scholarship must be cultivated if college is to be meaningful and productive. There develops amid the whirl of dances, concerts, and movies a sense of purpose and belonging. Instrumental in planning some of these activities is the Freshman Advisory Board, for it is their duty to represent the class as a body and cooperate in making the students' suggestions become realities. In such a manner this advisory body functions to make the first year memorable.

Relief and Loss

Flashing across the screen are the words The End. They carry a double meaning—one of relief and loss intermingled. We are relieved of the weighty responsibility which has been ours, but now we sense a loss. The yearbook no longer furnishes a clear purpose and direction for our energies.
